PRISON INMATES VISITED . . .

Gov. Exon Announces Sigler's Reappointment

By The Associated Press

Gov. J. James Exon Wednesday announced the reappointment of Maurice Sigler as deputy institutions director for corrections and warden of the penal complex.

The announcement followed a visit of more than four hours which Exon made to the penitentiary Tuesday — a period during which, the governor said, "I visited with every inmate who had written me, and many others who personally requested a private interview."

Exon said he had discussed with igler "certain areas where the legitimate requests of inmates should be carefully reviewed. The warden concurred that some changes can and should be made. We encourage free discussion and reasonably presented suggestions from all sources."

The governor said one of some "gray areas" with which Sigler intended to deal included some interference with the free flow of mail destined for such officials as the governor, judges and lawyers representing inmates.

Exon said Sigler acknowledged "some officers may have been violating their own rules" on mail censorship.

The governor said he ate lunch at the prison and was impressed with the quality of food served, although some inmates had complained about the food.

Exon said he passed on to Omaha Sen. Ernest Chambers Wednesday morning his decision to reappoint Sigler. Chambers has made recent visits to the prison and has been critical of prison administration.

Exon said he hopes Chambers "continues his concern" and hopes other senators also show their concern and visit the penal complex.

Sen. Chambers, showing up at the governor's hearing room during the news conference at which Sigler's reappointment was announced, held an impromptu news conference of his own afterwards. Chambers objected to Sigler's reappointment and said he felt Exon had not had enough time to evaluate Sigler's performance and philosophy.

Exon said he is certain there have been some tensions at the prison and acknowledged that some inmates were "uptight" about certain things. He said he will discuss these complaints further with Sigler in the next several days.

Sigler has been Nebraska's prison warden since 1959, and was made deputy institutions director for corrections during Gov. Norbert T. Tiemann's administration.

Exon said he is not satisfied with the rehabilitation program at the penal complex and suggested Sigler shares this feeling. Exon said he was surprised to learn there is no gymnasium at the penitentiary or reformatory for wintertime use when inmates cannot get sports recreation outdoors. Exon acknowledged that "everything is old" and living conditions are "somewhat austere." When men are "cooped up," these conditions "become magnified," he said.

He said he does not envision a "crash program" to build a new prison, which some have said could cost $20 million, but can foresee the replacement of buildings from time to time on a "pay as you go" basis.

Demo Hopefuls OK Non-Strife

Washington (UPI) — Potential Democratic presidential candidates agreed at a secret meeting Tuesday night to campaign against the Nixon administration and not to destroy each other, National Chairman Lawrence F. O'Brien announced Wednesday.

The three-hour dinner meeting was called by O'Brien and was also attended by Speaker Carl Albert and Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield.

At the session, O'Brien said were Sens. George G. McGovern of South Dakota, who has already announced as a candidate, Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, Edmund S. Muskie of Maine, Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, Harold E. Hughes of Iowa and Fred R. Harris of Oklahoma.

Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, who was not able to attend the meeting, met earlier with O'Brien and agreed to the moratorium on intraparty strife.

The party leaders also agreed to work together to help implement party reform and reorganization at all levels, to strengthen the political and financial resources of the national committee and to help the national committee raise funds on a continuing basis.

They agreed to work for comprehensive legislation to reform federal campaign spending laws and campaign financing and to seek more access to free television and radio time to counter the Republicans' greater free exposure as the party in the White House.

51 Deaths Tallied; Damage In Millions

. . . 33 Bodies At Vets Hospital

Los Angeles (AP) — The toll of dead continue to rise and property damage mounted into the hundreds of millions of dollars Wednesday as Southern California continued to quiver from aftershocks of Tuesday's devastating earthquake.

Workers searched the ruins of the Sylmar Veterans Hospital where the bodies of 33 patients and employes had been found. They said 10 persons still were missing. In all, authorities tallied 51 deaths, nine by heart attack. More than 1,000 persons were injured.

Fears of a rupture in the cracked dam of the city largest reservoir eased as the water level fell, due to draining. The 80,000 persons evacuated from the area were not allowed to return but officials said only a powerful new shock could cause trouble.

Agnew Arrives

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, sent here for consultations and an inspection tour after President Nixon declared California a disaster area, arrived for a helicopter look at hard-hit areas with Gov. Ronald Reagan and Mayor Sam Yorty.

Attention centered on the VA hospital at Sylmar in the west end of the San Fernando Valley just 10 miles from the quake's center. Some 250 workmen probed the steel and concrete rubble of two collapsed three-story ward buildings.

Well over 100 patients and employes were inside when the 6:01 a.m. temblor shook the 45-year-old structure apart. Scores were injured and additional scores trapped. For nearly 24 hours moans and cries came from victims trapped alive. Many injured were extricated and flown by helicopter to other hospitals.

Authorities said there was little chance of additional suvivors.

Cranston Has A Bill

In Washington, Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., introduced a bill to require that all VA hospitals be constructed or remodeled to meet earthquake resistant construction standards. He said the one that collapsed doesn't meet standards and that the law requires only fireproofing.

In Sacramento the chairman of the legislature's earthquake safety committee, Sen. Alfred Alquist, D-San Jose, proposed that state standards for school buildings be applied to all public structures.

Aftershocks by the hundreds emanated from the region of the quake's center in the San Gabriel Mountains 26 miles northwest.

A dozen or more fairly strong ones kept the area jiggling Wednesday but caused no new damage. Magnitudes of the stronger shocks were around 5 on the Richter scale, compared with 6.6 for the first.

Authorities began the massive job of assessing damage, most of it within a 40-mile radius of the quake's center.

Proposal To Wipe Out University's Eminent Domain Powers Advanced

The Legislature's Urban Affairs Committee Wednesday sent to the floor a sharply revised bill which would wipe out all powers of eminent domain for the University of Nebraska.

In other action, the committee deadlocked 3-3 on a proposal to advance a measure ordering the election of Lincoln City Council members by district.

Corridor conversation following the executive session indicated that the bill, LB122, will be sent to the floor if committee members can be assured of its constitutionality.

Original Plan

LB208, sponsored by Sen. Paul Morgan of Omaha, originally proposed merely to repeal the 1969 law granting the university the power of eminent domain over city property within three miles of its campuses in Lincoln and Omaha.

The 1969 act was specifically designed to permit the University of Nebraska at Omaha to condemn Elmwood Park property for construction of parking facilities.

But Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff gained committee assent to amend the bill to erase all eminent domain authority for the university, and the revised proposal was dispatched to the floor on a 5-1 vote.

With Carpenter

Voting with Carpenter were Sens. Herb Duis of Gothenburg, Calvin Carsten of Avoca, Walter Epke of York and Morgan.

Sen. Harold Simpson of Lincoln cast the dissenting vote.

Carpenter told newsmen that if the Legislature is going to protect park property, "it also should protect people whose homes are at stake."

If the university experiences problems in negotiating with property owners, he said, it can "come to the Legislature for specific authority to exercise eminent domain."

'Necessary'

Simpson said he opposed the proposal because the power of eminent domain, "while not always palatable, is necessary for organized growth and expansion of the institution."

No witnesses opposed Morgan's bill in its original form.

Among supporters of the measure were spokesmen for the City of Omaha, the Omaha PTA Council, the Northwest Community Council of Omaha, the Quality Environment Council of Nebraska and Sens. David Stahmer of Omaha and Wally Barnett of Lincoln.

The 1969 act not only threatens Elmwood Park, the committee was told, but has resulted in a cut-off of federal land and water conservation funds for development of all Lincoln and Omaha parks within the three-mile limits.

More Representative

Barnett, who sponsored LB122, said district election of the City Council would result in "more representative government" for the people of Lincoln.

Citizens who live north of O Street have been "shortchanged" by city government, Barnett said. They have a scant 77 acres of developed parkland, no hospitals and only one resident on the seven-membre council, he said.

The city, however, has provided north Lincoln with the city dump and a sewage disposal plant, he noted.

Among those supporting the bill were former Gov. Robert Crosby, speaking as a private citizen; Eric Carlson, an NU professor of political science, and spokesmen for the Lancaster County Democratic Party and the Lincoln Action Program.

Used Elsewhere

Crosby said council members are elected by districts or wards in all Nebraska communities of size other than Lincoln and Omaha, and he believes "parts of this town feel unrepresented."

Ralph Nelson presented the City Council's opposition to the proposal, noting that Lincolnites accepted the at-large system in two separate charter elections and once rejected a petition proposal to move to the district system.

Nelson questioned the constitutionality of the bill. Barnett, however, has an attorney general's opinion which indicates that the proposal meets constitutional tests.

Voting to advance were Morgan, Carpenter and Simpson. Nay votes were cast by Carsten, Duis and Epke.

Protests Violent In Berkeley, Baltimore

By The Associated Press

Demonstrations were held in several U.S. cities Wednesday to protest the South Vietnamese military incursion into Laos, and violence broke out in Berkeley, Calif., and Baltimore.

Most of the demonstrations were peaceful, but tear gas was used to break up demonstrators at Berkeley, and six policemen were treated at hospitals after a 45-minute melee as a crowd marched on a federal building in Baltimore.

In addition, there was a flag burning and scattered rock throwing at Boston as a crowd marched to the center of town after an antiwar rally at Boston Common.

About 600 demonstrators marched on an Atomic Energy Commission office in downtown Berkeley and threw rocks and bottles and set an AEC car on fire. Police broke up the demonstrators with tear gas. One policemen reportedly was cornered by a group of demonstrators and suffered a head injury.

The trouble began when a crowd estimated by newsmen at 2,000 gathered on the Berkeley campus where speakers urged them to "shut down the universities" and bring an end to atomic research. The demonstrators began serpentining around the campus before the one group drifted downtown to the AEC office.

At Baltimore, the policemen were injured after about 300 persons marched from the Ware Memorial Auditorium to Hopkins Plaza and broke several windows.

Police said one of the six officers had a head injury, but later described it as a "bump on the head." Twenty-three persons were arrested, four of them juveniles, on charges of assault, malicious destruction of property or disorderly conduct.

Authorities said the officers were jumped "for no reason" while leading the procession in the street in accordance with the protesters' parade permit.

In New York City, about 1,500 persons gathered for an antiwar rally at Times Square. No trouble was reported.

The rally started when about 200 antiwar protesters met on a traffic island between 43rd and 44th Streets. Some of the demonstrators carried signs warning of "the possible invasion of North Vietnam by American troops."

4 University Students Arrested

. . . After Protesting 'Repressive' Actions By Board Of Regents

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Three University of Nebraska students were arrested late Wednesday afternoon for refusing to leave the outer offices of Chancellor D. B. Varner in the administration building on the Lincoln City Campus.

Late Wednesday evening a fourth student was arrested for refusing to leave love Memorial Library.

About 20 campus security officers were on the scene at Varner's office to remove the students, who had told NU administrators they would neither resist officers nor cooperate with them.

The arrests climaxed a six-hour peaceful protest which began after students marched from a meeting in the Nebraska Union to the administration building across the street.

Arrested, Suspended

Arrested were Mike Barret, Mike Richardson and Dave Ratliff, all of whom also were temporarily suspended from the university.

Later, they were released by Lincoln police to the custody of an attorney. Lancaster County Attorney Paul Douglas said they would be charged with failing to "leave a public building when asked to do so."

Arrested at the library was Ronald Kurtenbach, 28, a graduate student in English. He was arrested by campus police officers and ordered held until a decision on charges is made by the county attorney's office Thursday. He was also suspended by the university.

The trio arrested earlier left Varner's offices about 5:30 p.m. as 40 to 50 other students cheered.

Repressive Actions

The students had begun the sit-in just before noon and after the meeting in the union, where students heard a call for a "non-disruptive protest" of what they consider repressive actions by the Board of Regents.

A statement said they would remain in the office until all members of the board met with the student body, and until three controversial personnel actions were reversed.

They asked that the university rehire Professors Stephen Rozman and Duke Hubbard, and hire Michael Davis, a Michigan graduate student whose appointment to the NU faculty was blocked by the board last summer.

Regents Charged

The statement charged that the regents and administrators "are guilty of disrupting and politicizing the educational process."

"It is undeniable," the statement said, "that had these men kept quiet and not spoken out against injustice, they would be teaching us next year."

About 45 students who lounged in chairs and on the carpet in the chancellor's offices were allowed to remain for a time.

Asked To Leave

But then Varner appeared and asked them to leave.

"There is no way for a university to operate without e stablished, well-understood, orderly procedures," he said.

"This is not an orderly procedure," he said. "I cannot allow you to occupy my office."

'Not Fair'

"I don't think you've been fair with me," he added, noting that he had spent a number of hours discussing the issues with many of them over the past two days.

Referring to the Rozman decision, Varner said: "You can sit here till doomsday and that decision won't be changed by the regents unless ordered to by the courts."

In an unexpected visit, apparently at the request of a student who rushed out of the room when Varner warned of sanctions, Rozman himself appeared and urged the students to leave.

'Not Going To Work'

"This is not going to work," he said. "If you get arrested, this is going to dissipate resources."

Calling the sit-in "tactically

Marines Off Viet Coast

World News

Saigon (AP) — The United States has placed a landing force of 1,500 Marines armed with artillery and tanks off South Vietnam's northern coast to counter a possible North Vietnamese thrust in retaliation for the Laos incursion, it was learned Thursday.

South Vietnamese forces penetrated 25 miles into southern Laos on Wednesday and seized the major enemy supply center of Sepone, apparently against little resistance.

Battle-tested U.S. Leathernecks of the 3rd Division, which operated along the DMZ until it was withdrawn from South Vietnam in 1969, were reported standing off the northern coast on ships of the 7th Fleet.

The Laos operation raised fears of a massive North Vietnamese attack against U.S. troops across the DMZ.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky said South Vietnamese forces might invade the North to cut off the enemy's rear supply bases.

Hanoi is believed to have elements of three divisions inside North Vietnam within marching distance of the DMZ.

Sepone, a main transshipment point and operations base on the Ho Chi Minh trail, was the first major objective of the drive into Laos. It had been bombed heavily and was reported almost deserted earlier.

The South Vietnamese said they also blew up two large ammunition dumps on the drive to Sepone.

In Cambodia, enemy gunners fired at least four rockets into Phnom Penh and its outskirts early Thursday and enemy troops attacked the Cambodian navy headquarters on the Mekong River nearby.

A Cambodian military spokesman said the attack on the naval headquarters was beaten off after an all-night battle. He said three of the rockets fell harmlessly on the city's outskirts and one struck a clearing in a Phnom Penh slum, causing no casualties.

In other developments:

—A South Vietnamese helicopter carrying four civilian news photographers was shot down Wednesday over the Ho Chi Minh Trail in Laos, apparently killing them and seven other persons aboard. Among them were three of the best-known combat photographers Indochina war — Henri Huet, 43, of The Associated Press; Larry Burrows, 44, of Life magazine, and Kent Potter, 24 of United Press International.

—Another South Vietnamese force sweeping through base areas inside Cambodia more than 300 miles south of the Laos operation clashed at four points with North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops. Headquarters said 96 enemy were killed at the cost of 19 South Vietnamese dead and 59 wounded.

Cambodia Chief Lon Nol Suffers Stroke, Paralysis

Phnom Penh (UPI) — Premier Lon Nol suffered a stroke Monday which paralyzed half his body, reliable sources close to the Cambodian government said Wednesday. An official communique said he had been ordered to stop all activities for medical reasons.

Lon Nol, 58, is a general in the army and also serves as Cambodia's defense minister in charge of operations against Communist invaders.

There was immediate speculation as to who would step into Lon Nol's position should his condition not improve but no official announcement was made on that point. The cabinet presumably will act on Lon Nol's behalf under Vice Premier Sirik Matak while he is under treatment.

Medical sources said the right side of Lon Nol's body was paralyzed. He has a medical history of diabetes and high blood pressure.

Use Of Human 'Guinea Pigs' Charged

(C) Washington Star

Washington — Charging that two pesticide manufacturers have used human "guinea pigs" to test insecticides under conditions previously designated as hazardous by California officials, a public interest research organization Wednesday asked for an immediate federal band against such practices.

The researchers said workers were given bonuses for going into the fields only seven days after application of the pesticides — even though state authorities had been ruled that at least a 30-day delay was needed for safety.

They said the exposure to the pesticides had had substantial harmful medical effects on the workers.

At a news conference here, the Agribusiness Accountability Project, a Washington-based organization, said "reprehensible and unpardonable" experiments on California farm workers were conducted by two companies:

—The Niagara Chemical Co. of Middleport, N.Y., a subsidiary of the FMC Corp., and manufacturer of the pesticide Ethion.

—The Chemagro Corp. of Kansas City, Mo., producer of the pesticide Guthion. The company is a subsidiary of A. G. Farbenfabriken-Bayer, Germany's largest drug manufacturer.

'Volunteers'

The organization charged that the two companies recruited "volunteers" through crew leaders for an experiment designed to establish a shorter waiting period before workers could enter fields sprayed with the insecticides.

Since the workers depend on the crew leaders for work, the organization said, it is doubtful that those tested were volunteers in the meaningful sense of the word.

Both Ethion and Guthion are used in California and elsewhere in citrus and other food crops. Because of their toxicity, the California Agriculture Department initially required a seven-day waiting period after the pesticides were applied to crops before human beings were allowed to enter the affected fields.

Despite that waiting period, there were 16 reports early last year of injuries to California farm workers who had been exposed to the pesticides, according to Jerry J. Berman and Jim Hightower, leaders of the Agribusiness Accountability Project.

"Symptoms of the illness include repeated vomiting, dizziness, excessive sweating and impaired nervous systems," said Berman and Hightower, whose organization was formed "to inquire into the accountability of large American corporations and agribusiness interests for the plight and powerlessness of migrant and seasonal farm workers."

Because of the reports of illness, the California Agriculture Department issued an emergency order June 19 requiring a 30-day interval between the application of Ethion and Guthion and the entry of people into the affected citrus orchards, Berman and Hightower said.

That order was prompted by three organic phosphate poisoning cases among citrus picking crews in Tulare County, Calif., in May.

Eban Asks Egypt To Lift Deadline

By The Associated Press

Israeli Foreign Minister Abba Eban called on Egypt Wednesday to lift its 30-day deadline on the latest Middle East cease-fire and urged it to take a second look at Premier Golda Meir's Suez Canal proposals before turning them dow.

Eban told a news conference that the March 7 limit imposed by Egyptian President Anwar Sadat does not create the proper atmosphere for free and fruitful talks on the complex issues at stake.

The foreign minister said Cairo spokesman Mahmoud Hafez acted "precipitatedly" on Tuesday in asserting that Mrs. Meir had turned down Sadat's proposals for reopening the Suez Canal.

Sen. Thurmond Didn't Walk Out

Washington (UPI) — Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., said Wednesday he left a draft hearing Monday not to protest the testimony being given by a college freshman, but to attend a previously scheduled meeting with Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans.

United Press International had reported that Thurmond "walked out" of the hearing.

Aiken Proposes S.E. Asians Convene Talks On Indochina

Washington (AP) — Sen. George D. Aiken of Vermont, proposed Wednesday that the Southeast Asian nations undertake a new effort to bring peace to Indochina by convening their own international conference, in Asia.

Aiken, dean of Senate Republicans and ranking GOP member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said the prolonged war and accompanying political conflict have made impossible any solution by the U.S. President and Congress, even assuming they could agree on something.

In calling for a conference, he said, "the day has passed when the major problems of Asia can be settled in some European city, where the Soviet Union and the Western powers enjoy a protocol status far in excess of their real influence.

"The time has come for nations to recognize that formal peace among the parties in Indochina will only come as a result of agreement among themselves," he added. "It cannot be imposed by others."

Secretary of State William P. Rogers gave tacit endorsement to Aiken's proposal when he told newsmen that the United States would welcome almost any sort of international conference set up to bring peace in Indochina. But he said Communist parties to the dispute have rejected suggestions for such conferences in the past.

Aiken suggested that New Delhi, India, could "replace Geneva as the place where Asian problems are discussed and, hopefully, resolved," and that participants could include Indian, Japan, Communist China and the Soviet Union.

"I cannot believe that Russia has of late had a vested interest in keeping up the conflict in Indochina," he said.

He said the United States might take part if invited.

Aiken's speech was praised by Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania who said, "It just might be a good thing if they could be persuaded to do it," and by Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana.

Astronauts 'Perfectly OK'

Aboard USS New Orleans (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts, described as "perfectly okay," cruised across a remote stretch of the South Pacific Wednesday toward Samoa and an airlift home.

Astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa underwent extensive medical examinations inside the trailer-like isolation van where they are quarantined. The van is secured on a deck of this prime recovery ship.

A space agency physician, Dr. William R. Garner, said the astronauts were "medically perfectly okay and no major medical problems have showed up."

Sihanouk In Hanoi

Tokyo (AP) — The official Vietnam News agency reported Prince Norodom Sihanouk, ousted Cambodian chief of state, visited Hanoi Jan. 26 to discuss the Indochinese war. Sihanouk has lived in Peking since he was toppled last March.

Trial For Ortiz Is Under Way

. . . Four Women On Jury

Kearney (AP) —Sgt. Fernando Lecuna of the Douglas County Sheriff's Office testified in the trial of Lawrence Ortiz here Wednesday regarding a conversation he had with the defendant.

Ortiz, 41, of Omaha is charged with first degree murder in the death of 29-year-old Charlotte Elaine Whittington, an Omaha area entertainer. Her bruned and mutilated body was found near Elm Creek on Aug. 31.

Lecuna testified that Ortiz said after his arrests he had lent his car to Charlotte on the night of her death so she could "get a fix."

The Douglas County deputy quoted Ortiz as saying he found the car outside a Lincoln motel the next morning but that the woman was missing.

Lecuna also quoted Ortiz as asking the deputy, "How much do they have on me?"

Lecuna was one of ten prosecution witnesses in the opening day of testimony before a jury of eight men and four women.

Lt. Lynn Parks of the State Patrol Criminal Investigation Division testified he found a dark red spot behind the driver's seat of the car which had belonged to Ortiz.

Dr. John Scott, who conducted the autopsy, said the Omaha entertainer died of trauma.

Buffalo County Atty. Andrew McMullen indicated the state may rest its case Thursday.

Third Region Of Air Quality Control Eyed

Rep. Charles Thone, R-Neb., has announced that state and local officials will meet Feb. 24 with the Federal Environmental Protection Agency to hear testimony on a proposed air quality control region.

The hearing will concern a proposal to designate Lancaster, Gage, Jefferson and Thayer Counties as Nebraska's third air quality control region.

Under the amended Clean Air Act, the deadline for EPA to designate air quality control regions is March 31.

Two control regions are already designated — Douglas and Sarpy counties in Nebraska, with Pottwattami County in Iowa, and Dakota County in Nebraska along with one county in South Dakota and two in Iowa.

The state air pollution control council will decide at a Feb. 18 meeting what recommendations to make to EPA concerning boundaries for the proposed new region.

Long Hair OKd

Bonn (AP) — The West German army said soldiers could let their hair grow to shoulder length, but must wear hairnets in situations where long locks might imperil their safety.

Debt Ceiling Hike Of $40 Billion May Be Asked

Washington (AP) — The administration is expected to ask for a $40-billion increase in the national debt ceiling, to a total of $435 billion, Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Wednesday.

Mills said the committee will open hearings on the request Feb. 17.

In contrast to the expected jump, the last debt limit increase, in 1970, was of $18 billion, from $377 billion to $395 billion. The actual debt as of last Thursday was $390.4 billion.

Rare Species Of Gaur Born In Omaha Zoo

Omaha (AP) — A rare species of wild East Indian cattle increased its numbers by one Tuesday night, when —shortly before a total eclipse of the moon — a female gaur was born at the Henry Doorly Zoo in Omaha.

The rare newcomer caused quite a stir.

Lee Simmons, zoo director, said other zoo directors "are already standing in line to buy her."

The new gaur's mother was the first female of the species born in captivity since the 1940s, Simmons said. "It was a rare event then and a rare event now."

Simmons said there are only seven female gaurs in captivity in the United States. Five of them are in Omaha, and the other two are in an Oklahoma City zoo.

Did the moon eclipse have anything to do with the birth?

"I doubt it," said Simmons, "but you might say Omaha witnessed two rare events in one night.

Denney Receives Subcommittee OK

Washington (UPI) — Robert V. Denney's nomination to be a federal judge received the approval Wednesday of a Senate Judiciary Subcommittee.

The full judiciary committee is not expected to act for a day or two on the nomination.

Denney was assured Tuesday during the subcommittee hearing there would be little delay getting his nomination approved by the full committee.

Denney, 54, is from Fairbury. He served in Congress the past two terms. He withdrew from the general election race after learning he would be nominated for a judgeship.

Bryson Appointed

Omaha (UPI) — John M. Bryson, assistant chief of the career branch in the office of the chief of corps of engineers' office in Washington, will take over administration of personnel here for the 14-state river division this week.

EWE GOT TO BE KIDDING

Quadruplet lambs create more demand for milk than the supply allows, so Wayne Tabbert, 4, helps bottle feed one of the lambs on his father's farm south of Aberdeen, S.D. The lambs were born last week and another ewe had to help their mother nurse the youngsters for a few days.

Wheat Institute Post To Nebraskan

Nebraska News

Lodgepole (AP) —Frank Jones, a wheat producer here, said Wednesday that he has been made chairman of the National Wheat Institute committee on marketing and transportation of wheat.

Jones is the National Farmers Organization (NFO) representative to the new institute, which held its organizational meeting last month.

Jones said the NFO, in joining the new institute, is primarily concerned about market development.

"In the past," Jones said, "marketing has been done through the grain trade with very little reflected back to the producer."

He explained, "if we are successful in developing new markets including an overseas cash market, the farmer may be able to handle his own marketing and enhance the price he is able to receive."

The federal government is expected to fund the Wheat Institute with some $2 million through the Department of Agriculture. Jones said the money was not yet available, "but may begin to reach the institute in the next 30 days or so."

He said that so far the institute is only in the organizational stage, and is setting up committees to examine and screen projects.

Davis Corroborates Testimony Of Parents

Grand Island (AP) — Thomas Davis, 34, continued his testimony Wednesday in his retrial for the death of his wife, Phyllis, in 1968. An earlier conviction was overturned by the State Supreme Court.

Davis corroborated testimony given by his parents Tuesday, concerning the events of the night before his wife's body was found in an apparent auto wreck in Grand Island.

He told the District Court jury that immediately on returning from his grandparents' home in Lincoln he conferred with James Livingston, a Grand Island funeral director, about what was needed to dress his wife's body. Davis said Livingston requested a pair of glasses since none had been brought to the funeral home with the body.

That afternoon, Davis testified Mrs. Patricia Ewer called his mother and said Phyllis' glasses had been found at the scene of the accident. Davis' mother testified earlier that she told Davis immediately that the glasses had been found, since she knew by then that the glasses were needed at the funeral home.

Davis also said he loaded the meat slicer which was later found resting on his wife's body into the station wagon before leaving for Lincoln.

Dealing with his personal life, Davis said he was aware that his wife was "going out," and said he had overheard a phone conversation indicating that she had a date with another man. Davis said he had questioned his wife about her activities, and testified that her response had been: "If she told me, and I told someone else, it involves some other people and we'd both be in trouble."

Davis said under cross-examination by Richard Debacker, the prosecuting attorney, that he had met his mistress, Mrs. Cheryl Crane, a year before he married Phyllis.

Davis testified Phyllis had not mentioned any plans to go out when he talked to her from Lincoln the night before she died, and replied in the negative when Debacker asked if during the phone call Davis might have suggested to his wife "that she go somewhere and get something."

On rebuttal the prosecution Wednesday examined Merle "Pete" Booth, identified by other witnesses as the lover of Mrs. Davis.

Booth testified he had checked into Fitzsimons Army Hospital at Denver, Colo., on Aug. 13, 1968—one day before the death of Mrs. Davis.

He said he was released from the hospital at 10 a.m. on Aug. 14.

On cross-examination Booth admitted he had been in Grand Island on Aug. 15.

The trial will resume Thursday morning with closing statements by both sides in the case.

Range Managers Pick Bredemeier As President

Reno, Nev. — A native of Steinauer, Neb., and graduate of the University of Nebraska will assume the presidency of the Society of Range Management (formerly the American Society of Range Management), during the group's annual meeting here February 14-18.

Lorenz F. Bredemeier, now of Fort Worth, Texas, is an authority on brushland management and serves the Soil Conservation Service, USDA, nationwide in this capacity.

Bredemeier received his BS and MS degrees from the University of Nebraska. He joined SCS in 1938 after working with the Nebraska agricultural Extension program. His SCS work has included positions in agronomy, soil conservation, and as a district conservationist, and range conservationist in Iowa and Nebraska.

In 1963, Bredemeier was appointed range conservationist for the lake states, where he later became SCS regional resource development head.

NU Students Arrested

unwise," Rozman suggested "perhaps it would be better if people left," and, standing next to Varner, he offered the chancellor his help.

But at the end of a 15-minute time limit set by Varner, eight students remained in the room. He immediately announced they were on probation.

Suspended

Later, those remaining were told they had to leave or face temporary suspension, "pending a hearing."

Two, Barret and Richardson, refused to leave and sat in chairs inside the ofifce. The rest crowded the hallway outside, careful to allow anyone to pass through.

That situation remained static for most of the afternoon, while students, newsmen and faculty observers looked on.

Joined Later

Ratliff joined the two later in the afternoon, saying he thought it unfair that the suspensions had been initiated before 5 p.m., when the office closes.

After the students were again given warnings they would be arrested if they did not leave, officers evicted them, leading them to waiting police cars.

Fourteen students remained in the building at 8 p.m., when officials told them the facility would be closed and asked them to leave.

On Probation

One at first refused and was also put on probation. Warned that he would be suspended as well, he left.

Varner had said earlier that he would only call for arrests "reluctantly." The decision to allow the two to remain until 5 p.m. came after he huddled with other administrators, faculty and student representatives and campus and city police officers.

Kurtenbach had entered the library earlier in the afternoon and reportedly planned a three-day fast and sit-in in protest of the handling of the Davis and Rozman cases.

He was taken into custody at 11:35 p.m. after University President Joseph Soshnik had issued the same warnings given the other students earlier in the day at 15-minute intervals.

University officials said about two dozen other students in the buildng at the time left in an orderly fashion atfer the first warning was given.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Another decision has been rendered in the classic case of Marvin Katko against Mr. and Mrs. Edward Briney, an Iowa farm couple. Katko was shot and permanently deformed by the blast of a rigged shotgun as he attempted to burglarize the Briney's abandoned farm home.

Katko pleaded guilty to larceny in the nighttime but sued the Brineys for compensation for his injuries. Now, the Iowa Supreme Court has upheld a lower court award of $30,000 from Brineys to Katko.

The Iowa high court stated, in the majority opinion, that the law "has always placed a higher value upon human safety than upon mere rights of property. Spring guns and other man-killing devices are not justifiable against a mere trespasser or a petty thief."

★

We call it a classic case because it clearly draws the line between human and other rights. Basically, all rights are human rights but the simple and most fundamental human right of all, the right to life, does not always prevail.

Often, property rights of one kind or another are left to prevail at the sacrifice of more basic rights. All of the rights that are a part of our social, economic and political structures can and often do work against the basic right of life itself, life at least in any meaningful sense.

There are many people who will take issue with the Iowa Supreme Court decision. They will say that Katko was in the process of committing a crime and got what was coming to him. They will say that the property involved belonged to the Brineys and the couple had every right to protect it as they saw fit.

But they are arguing the very thing that the high court said was not permissible in our society and under our law. The principle the court expounded is one that goes back in antiquity at the times of slavery, sweat shops and debtors prison.

No human being can be considered a chattel, nor can he be subjugated to the power of economic influence or the authority of property ownership. This concept is at the very heart of the sociological and political struggle that is going on in the nation today.

At the center of all our problems and our discussions is the human problem, the problem if life itself being given a secondary role in the affairs and institutions of mankind. When men and their institutions infringe upon life and its fulfilment then both are pressured to give way.

Political system that destroy the freedom of the individual are taking a toll of life itself and its fullness. They do not recognize the primary status or position of life. And it is because of this fundamental error that such systems have so many of the difficulties that plague them.

This is why we are challenged to provide a political system that gives true equality of representation to all people and all interest groups. It is why we are challenged to provide an economic system that gives meaning and reality to the equality of opportunity.

★

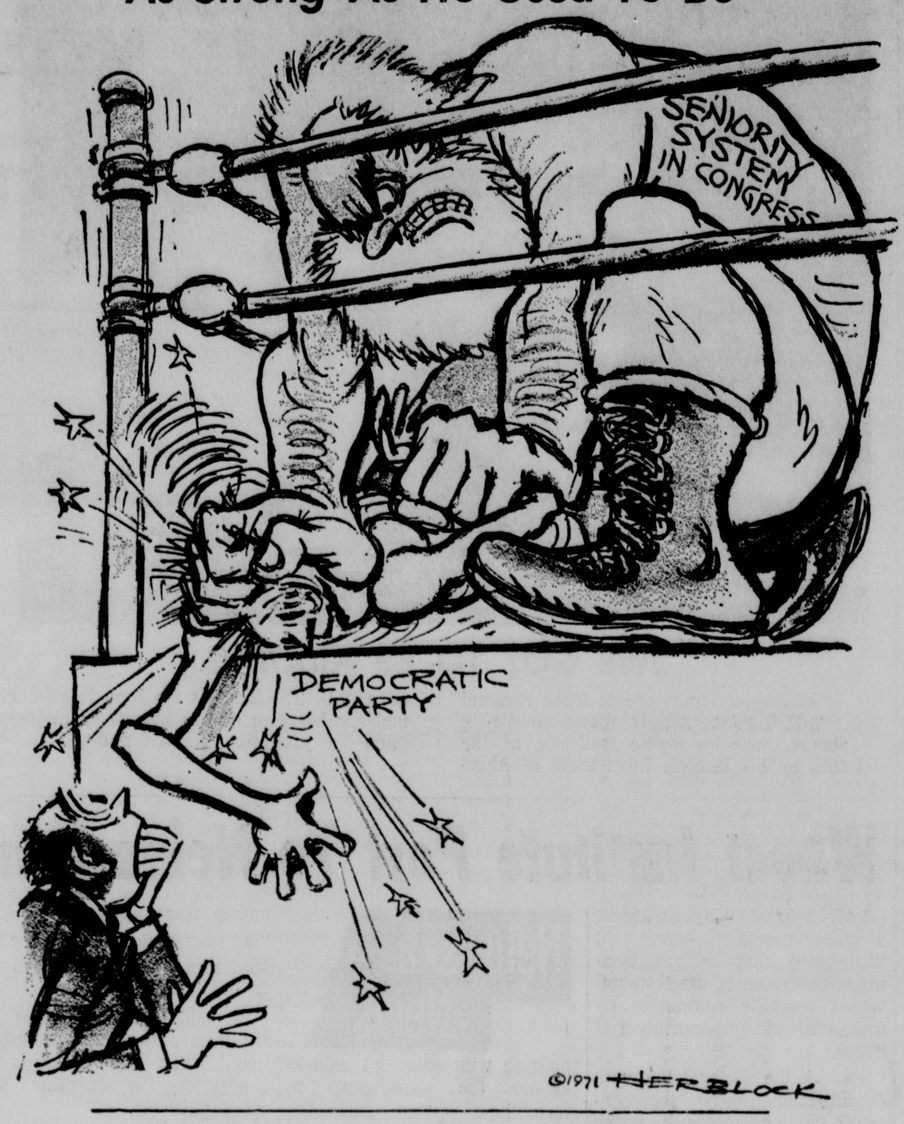

The Iowa court decision again demonstrates that the cause of life itself must be one of the principle motivating factors in what we do. The right to as meaningful a life as possible is one that we should seek to protect, not one to diminish.

It is for this reason that our law and our courts seek so adamantly the cause of equal justice. It is why, with equal justice, we lean so heavily upon an assumption of innocence until an accused is proven guilty.

And there is not much room in all of this for a great deal of selectivity. We cannot very well establish standards of social conduct by which we measure a man's entitlement to equal consideration under the law and the right to life.

To a degree, your rights are commensurate with your own sense of responsibility but too often we like to relate, not the responsibility, but to mention and prejudice. The Iowa court decision is one that serves the cause of dignity for all mankind.

'I'm Gaining . . . He's Not Nearly As Strong As He Used To Be'

Council Pay Questioned Again

The two most recent attempts to raise the compensation of Lincoln City Council members above the current level — $20 per regular meeting — failed as voters turned down council pay raises included on charter revision ballots.

The City Charter Revision Committee has decided again to open up the door and take out one of the skeletons in the City Hall closet by undertaking a study of the duties and activities of the City Council as well as the compensation that council members should receive.

Councilmen and committee members discussed the problems the other day and the upshot of the discussion was that although they don't mind spending it, city business takes an unbelievable amount of time and the time spent results in members earning less in their businesses. It was also pointed out that the present low rate of compensation precludes a lot of younger people and small businessmen from running. "What happens," said council member and mayoral candidate Bill Davidson, "is that you get down to a narrow group who can afford to serve."

Council members can't be given gold stars for being original in their criticisms of public service. But they bring up these things again and again only because they are true. Council service never was a picnic — although it is rewarding in many ways — however in the past decade, time and energy requirements of those who serve have multiplied many times over. And the compensation has remained the same, which is not something the citizens of Lincoln should be proud of.

Several council members said they would like to see a pay hike placed on a special ballot in 1972, feeling that the city election this spring is too near to adequately inform the public on the need for an increase.

The public has been informed of the need several times in the past few years and it just may be that another year or even five will not make any difference. But we hope that the next time the question is put on the ballot, Lincoln voters will take a closer look at what they expect of council members and at what they pay them.

Road To Oblivion

May 4 can't come too soon. That's the date on which voters will decide the fate of proposed authority for the city to issue bonds for the purchase of Lincoln City Lines. If the bond authority is approved, a new day will dawn for mass transit in the city.

If the bond authority is defeated, Lincoln's mass transit system will be on the road to oblivion. In fact, it might be said that such is already the road being travelled. In the last two months of 1970, Lincoln City Lines showed a loss of more than $10,000 and a continuing drop in patronage.

The system is nearing the point where it can, under terms of an agreement with the city, give notice of cancellation of all service. That time could come in September and we would fully expect such notice under conditions as they now exist.

Voters may well wonder when they face the bond authority question if they are not being asked to buy a dead horse. There may be some truth in this but we cannot believe that the bus operation in Lincoln has to be as deplorable as it is.

Present equipment is nothing less than filthy. Beyond that, it is in poor repair and gives a highly uncomfortable ride. It is not uncommon for buses to break down in the middle of a run and some have even been known to run out of gas. Waits of up to 45 minutes for a bus are reported with fair regularity.

You would have to stand on the corner in zero weather for 45 minutes only once to give up on public transportation. We could only guess the number but certainly thousands have been driven from the ranks of the bus riders by the absolutely lousy service that is given. And the Lincoln system has done nothing to our knowledge to cultivate any charter business or to promote patronage. Maybe mass transit will never make a profit but it could be made a lot better than it is and the erosion of patronage could at least be stopped.

MARQUIS CHILDS

Reshaping An Overgrown Giant

WASHINGTON — Whatever the final score in the showdown with Congress, President Nixon deserves a vote of thanks for his proposed reorganization of that overgrown giant suffering from elephantiasis — the federal government. Hopefully the President's proposal still to take shape in all its complexity should stimulate debate about what is wrong — and what is right — about the structure of government in these United States.

Experiments in decentralization in the past should have careful consideration. One of those experiments that stirred fierce controversy in its day has proved to be a conspicuous success.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) was decentralization applied to the development of a whole region that had slumped steadily downhill as human and natural resources were drained away. Seven million acres in the seven states, portions of which comprised the region, were eroded. Forests, a principal asset, were being cut down with little regard for the future. The seven states had fewer than 10 professional foresters. The ablest and brainiest of the young were leaving for lack of opportunity.

TVA was designed to take authority out of Washington and put it in the region where the decisions would be made in reshaping a river basin wracked by floods and poverty. A liaison office in Washington has never had more than three or four employes. TVA headquarters in Knoxville is the decision-making center.

When TVA moved to buy out the electric systems of the region and operate them, angry cries of socialism were raised against what seemed a radical move. Sen. George Norris of Nebraska, the father of TVA, believed that only through government operation would it be possible to bring low-cost power to the farmers of the Tennessee Valley. Power on the farms, Norris said, will mean a hired hand for the farmer and a hired girl for his wife.

After a long donnybrook that became part of a presidential campaign TVA won out and proceeded to own and operate the power network. The power was sold at wholesale at the lowest possible cost to municipalities and co-ops, which had responsibilitiy for distribution to the consumer. With the expansion of the power system TVA is turning back to the federal treasury an increasing share of the total investment in the region.

☆ ☆ ☆

One of President Nixon's announced goals is to turn over land to states and municipalities for parks. In the 37 years since its beginning TVA has given hundreds of thousands of acres to localities for parks and recreation areas. At the invitation of the localities TVA provides specialists who help in planning the park. But within guidelines laid down for proper use the responsibility is a local one.

This is in accord with the broad principle that, whenever possible authority is delegated to the people who will have to exercise it. Power to the people? Something like that slogan, shorn of its emotional overtones, is the motivation behind much of what TVA does.

From the beginning, however, it has been recognized that there are functions which only the federal government can perform. The harnessing of a great river system is one of those functions. The Tennsesee Valley has had no disastrous floods since the work was completed, controlling a river and its tributaries that once created havoc almost every spring along its banks.

☆ ☆ ☆

Not even the most ardent proponents of TVA claim that it is a prescription which can be applied indiscriminately to other regions. A determined drive in Congress to create a Missouri Valley Authority failed. That great river basin with so many sparsely populated areas was hardly adaptable, in the view of friendly critics, to the TVA type of development.

Worthy of study in the great debate that will supposedly follow the President's blueprint for reshaping the government are the successful steps TVA has taken toward decentralization. Here are practical lessons in what works.

Only in recent years has the conservative opposition to TVA more or less subsided. The accomplishments are so conspicuous—millions of acres of eroded land reclaimed, dairying and small industry built on low-cost power, forestry a flourishing source of income — and pride in those accomplishments so great that political opposition no longer pays off.

LA VERNA HASSLER

Patchwork Prairie Country

Weather is always a major subject at this time of the year. February brings a change in the air and brief thaws. Low gray clouds go scudding by in an opaque sky. Snow flurries may fall from the clouds one minute and the next minute the sun shine with nary a hint of a cloud. Perhaps it is good that Valentine's day comes at this time of year. At least for one day it turns our thoughts of weather to thoughts of love.

I was surprised to learn that the custom of celebrating Valentine's day is over two thousand years old. It must have something to hold its importance over so many years. I suppose it is because we all secretly enjoy a little romance in our souls whether we be teen-agers or gray-haired grandparents.

I had to smile to myself when I read of advice given to young girls seventy-five years ago in a leading woman's magazine.

Said the gentle lady giving advice, "I do not think it is necessary for girls to wear scarfpins or college pins belonging to their men friends." Another states, "Young girls who do not wish to have the world speak harshly of them do not go out driving with young men alone at night."

The dear lady would throw her hands up in alarm if she saw how the etiquette and fads have changed since she was writing the column.

She would be at a loss as to what to say about young girls going to nude films with their men friends. Yet her comment would not be necessary for I learned not one of these films made money for the producers. When there were other shows to be seen, people did not choose this type of picture. So the people spoke . . . the stable, level-headed, sensible people who are your neighbors and mine striving to preserve some measure of morality.

The shows that are new and rating the good comments are old-fashioned love stories where love is meaningful and above the level of beasts. Come to think of it, maybe that is why Cupid and Valentine's day have survived . . . The people have chosen to keep it that way.

☆ ☆ ☆

We went to a basketball game the other night and sat behind the pep club. How delightful it was to see such enthusiasm and happiness. It spread and was as tingly as static electricity. However, when the rows below us began to sway from side to side in rythum to a chant, I almost tumbled from the bleachers. It was as if someone were rocking the boat and I was seasick.

☆ ☆ ☆

Picturesque portraits I would like to frame for the keeping:

The silver sickle of a new moon touching the peak of our barn as it rises into the nighttime sky.

The fat farm geese waddling in a pool of melting snow telling each other that spring is on the way.

A little lad with his new overshoes splashing through the same puddle to test the worth of his new purchase.

The shaggy Shetland pony pawing in the snow to uncover a tender morsel.

Farmers passing the time of day in our town while they speculate on when they will get into the fields.

Seed catalogs in the mailbox urging the green-thumb gardener to cast his sights toward planting time.

The first robin of the new season in the apple tree with its ear tuned toward spring but hearing only the moan of the winter wind.

The big gray cat sitting on the step sunning himself hoping for better days to come.

VIRGINIA PAYETTE

NEW YORK — A current gag making the rounds has a businessman at a lunch counter ordering "a tuna on white — hold the mercury." Loud guffaws.

Very funny. Until you sit down and make a list of all the foods the government fellows say are bad for you. It's almost enough to make you turn vegetarian. (Except that the organic crowd will tell you DDT's ruined that escape, too.)

They've been busy up there in the Food and Drug Administration testing labs. In the past few months they've found mercury in tuna and swordfish, arsenic in chickens, botulism in pizzas, pesticides in turkeys, antibiotics in cheese, hormones in meat, salmonella in soup, and cyclamates in soft drinks.

Sometimes they try to soften the blow. It's doubtful, they say, that the arsenic residues pose "any serious human health hazards." They even remind us (in case we didn't exactly shine in Chemistry 101) that "organic arsenic is far less toxic than inorganic arsenic."

☆ ☆ ☆

A fat lot of reassurance this is to us Agatha Christie fans. Besides, Webster says "toxic" means "poisonous." So how safe is "less poisonous"?

And anybody who reads the papers knows mercury in high enough concentrations can cause brain damage, blindness and birth defects. What we need to know now is how high is "enough"?

Then there's black pepper. They've found bacteria in some of that, too. "Not a significant hazard," they say. (Unless you put it in something moist and let it sit around a few days.) But you'll notice they called back 116,700 cans of it in a hurry.

Not even candy bars are 100 per cent safe. We've always known they were full of calories. But . . . rat hairs???

Small comfort, too, is the latest bulletin from Professor Bruce McDuffie, the chemist who first found that mercury in fish. He tells us pet food he's tested have met all the mercury-level standards set by the FDA. And "cats and dogs are faring a lot better than people" when it comes to eating. Well, bully for Fido.

And when you branch out into the area of canned and frozen foods you open up a whole new can of worms. (Mercury content unknown.)

☆ ☆ ☆

In the first place, in case you didn't know, scads of them are full of chemicals, additives, synthetics, antioxidants, growth inhibitors, thickening agents and emulsifiers. And nobody seems to agree on whether they are good for us or not.

The food industry people say they're safe and nutritious and, besides, the customer demands them for taste and convenience. And they produce scientists who back them up.

Then there are others (spokesmen from the world of consumerism, lawmakers and scientists) who will tell you some food chemicals are hazardous . . . others are suspect . . . and some are even downright unnecessary.

Meantime, friend, please pass another helping of everything. If I go, I'll go with a smile — and gravy — on my lips.

Latest American Adventure In Indochina Calls Up Memories Of Forgotten Lessons

WASHINGTON — In this latest crisis in the Indochina war, when we are being told once more that the latest adventure into Laos will surely put an end to the long agony, it may be prudent to look back to the record.

Last time, only last spring, it was the invasion of Cambodia that was going to destroy the enemy's sanctuaries and let us go home. Before that, it was destruction of the enemy's forces in the Tet offensive that was supposed to have broken the back of the opposition. And before that, it was American air support, then American air power itself, then the U.S. search - and - destroy missions, then the bombing of the north, each in its own turn, that was going to be "decisive."

It is a very old story, underscoring a long forgotten lesson Herbert Butterfield pointed it out long ago. "However hard we have tried in the 20th Century to make allowances in advance for the unpredictable consequences of war," he wrote, "we have always discovered that the most terrible of these had been omitted from our calculations or only imperfectly foreseen. One of the examples of the fact is the loss of liberty in eastern Europe and the Balkans — the very regions whose freedom was the primary issue for which we were supposed to have undertaken to world wars."

☆ ☆ ☆

The First World War was probably the most tragic example of this kind of miscalculation. Believing that there could never be an aggressor so monstrous as Germany under the Kaiser, the allies fought that ghastly war in the west to the point of "total victory," and in the process created two much more formidable menaces for ourselves, Nazi Germany and Communist Russia.

There is, of course, a certain military logic to the invasion of Laos, and even a moral justification for attacking an enemy sheltering and gathering in a neutral country for an attack on South Vietnam. The administration's policy is that it will use air power anywhere in Indochina where enemy forces may "ultimately" threaten the security of our own troops.

There was a certain logic too in all those other moves, as seen from the Pentagon. Who could logically suppose that a small enemy country, operating over long lines of supply and without airpower, could stand against half a million Americans, equipped with all the modern weapons of war, and in complete control of the air and sea? Yet events did not quite work out as the Pentagon planned.

Now the assumption here is that Hanoi is down to its last supply route along the Ho Chi Minh trails, and that if these are cut, the enemy will be crippled at least long enough to let us get out, and the South Vietnamese by that time,will be able to fend for themselves.

It is a reasonable assumption if you also assume that the Soviets and Chinese will not give Hanoi new weapons to match the mounting fire power of the allies. Maybe the enemy will accommodate us this time, stand and fight and be destroyed, while Moscow and Peking watch patiently on the side. But this is no sure thing, and time and geography are on their side.

What happens if the enemy merely retreats into the jungle and regroups later in North Vietnam. Do we then resume the bombing of the north on that ground that troops there might "ultimately" threaten our command? And if we do cut the supply trails to the north and get out in a year or 18 months, what is "decisive' about that?

☆ ☆ ☆

The theory of "a war to end war" went out with Woodrow Wilson. When we finally leave, if we do, it will be said that General Giap in Hanoi expelled the French from Indochina and fought the Americans to a compromise settlement. This cannot hurt or depress Giap in that will then be a struggle with Saigon.

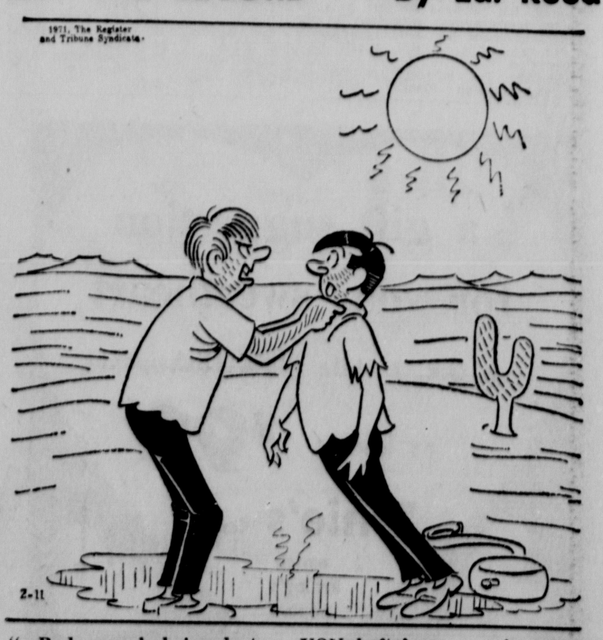

NBC took a poll the other day and found that 46 per cent of the people were convinced, despite the administration's statements to the contrary, that there actually were American ground troops fighting in Laos. In short, even when the administration was telling the truth, it wasn't believed by almost half of those polled.

The popular view seems to be that it is all right to attack a neutral country occupied by the enemy so long as our casualties are not too high, that if the enemy invades a neutral country, it is reasonable for us to do the same.

This is the logic of our latest adventure, but what if the Russians or the Chinese assumed that since we were giving air support to Saigon, they would give air power to Hanoi? Or new longer range rockets? What then would happen to our logic and our assumptions?

Man, 80, Evokes Admiration From Young

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Robert Peterson is on vacation. During his absence his column will be written by author and publisher Henry Schmidt.)

By HENRY SCHMIDT

In observing an elderly neighbor of ours, a gentleman of about 80, with tousled hair, my daughter said: "I love that little old man. He's always got a little puckish smile on his face and something cute to say to people he meets. Sometimes I think he's got more life in him than some of my 20-year-old friends."

To evoke such admiration from the young — that's a feat! I hope I can do it when my time comes, for I love the young too. This man buzzes around with a youthful vigor, always looking interested in what he's doing.

One of the great contributors to understanding of the aged, Dr. Lillian Martin, gave the following as her description of a fine old person: "A person who, by his later life, gives proof of having lived well, is of a person who has learned much from his sorrow and has made his experiences useful to others, one who has continued his education all through life so that his mind is alive to changing conditions and is able to take on new views. A person who has kept up in the race of progress and refuses to lag too far behind, one who has outgrown the narrow needs and self interest of youth, who has become impersonal but by no means indifferent, who can re-evaluate life after much experience, built up a philosophy and develop the spiritual side of his nature. One who is willing to struggle for self-improvement and to live according to the highest ideals he has espoused.

One person who did live this way is famed Grandma Moses, who in her book, "My Life's History," wrote: "I look back on my life, like a good day's work, it was done and I feel satisfied with it. I was happy and contented. I knew nothing better and made the best out of what life offered. And life is what we make it, always had been, always will be."

It would be well if we all could look back over our lives with thoughts like these — no remorse, no regrets for not having done better. This charming, tiny little lady who painted her first picture when she was 76, and then started on the road to fame for life and its excitement until she passed away at the ripe age of 101. Certainly her philosophy and her spirit had much to do with her success and her longevity.

Deductions Are Perfectly Legal Way To Cut Income Tax Bill

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Deductions are a perfectly legal way to cut your federal income tax bill. Since there is more than one way of claiming them, you should pick the one that saves you the most money. This is the fourth of five articles on how to prepare your federal income tax return which is due on or before April 15.)

By NORMAN KEMPSTER

Washington (UPI) — Often the difference between having to send a check along with your income tax return and getting a refund from the government hinges on whether you claim all your legitimate deductions.

Deductions reduce the amount of income on which you are required to pay taxes. They are a form of compensation to you for certain expenses which Congress has decided deserve special treatment.

You must first decide whether you want to claim a standard deduction or itemize your deductions. To be safe you may want to figure your tax both ways to see which saves you more money.

There are two ways to claim a standard deduction. The most common is to deduct 10% of your adjusted gross income up to a ceiling of $1,000. (The ceiling is $500 each for married persons filing separately. If your adjusted gross income is $9,456, you would be entitled to a deduction of $945.60. But if your adjusted gross income was $10,001 or more, you would be entitled to a standard deduction of only $1,000.

New Rule

As an alternative, if you earned comparatively little money last year, you may be entitled to a new "low income allowance." It is worked out by a complex formula that can produce an exemption as high as $1,100.

The primary objective of the low income allowance, approved by Congress as part of the mammoth tax reform act of 1969, was to remove over 5 million of the poor and near poor from the tax rolls.

A single person under 65 with an income of under $1,700 need not file a return this year. Last year, the filing minimum was $600 for taxpayers under 65 and $1,200 for those 65 and older.

A married couple with income under $2,300 need not file.

Low Income

For some persons with low incomes who earned enough to be required to pay taxes, the low income allowance will mean a lower tax bill than the regular standard deduction. You do not have to do much arithmetic to use the low income allowance although its formula is complicated.

The income tax tables, used by taxpayers earning less than $10,000 who do not itemize deductions, automatically give you the benefit of either the standard deducation or the low income allowance whichever is more helpful to you.

Usually, it is better to itemize deductions if you paid interest on a home mortgage, contributed large sums to churches or charities, had unusually big medical bills, paid alimony or suffered a big casualty loss that was not covered by insurance.

There is no ceiling on the total amount you can claim if you itemize deductions. But there are strict rules that apply to various types of deductions.

Deductions Listed

Here are some of the deductions which most taxpayers can take advantage of:

Medical expenses—You can claim a deduction of one-half of the amount you spent in 1970 on medical insurance premiums up to a limit of $150. You get this deduction regardless of how much your other medical expenses were. Then you add up your other medical and dental expenses, including the balance of your medical insurance payments and if the total comes to more than 3% of your adjusted gross income, you can claim a deduction for the amount which exceeds 3%. The cost of drugs and medicines may be figured into your medical expenses but only to the extent they exceed 1% of your adjusted gross income.

For Example: If your adjusted gross income was $10,000 and your drug bills last year were $178, you first subtract 1% of the $10,000—or $100—from the $178, leaving $78 to be counted among your medical expenses. If you had other medical and dental expenses totaling $322 for the year that would give you a total of $400 counting the drugs. You could deduct only $100—the amount by which your expenses exceeded 3% of your income or $300. But you could also deduct half of your medical insurance premiums even if your total medical bills came to less than $300.

Contributions—You may deduct contributions to churches and charities. Your total deduction is generally limited to 50% of your income, up from a maximum last year of 30%. However, there are special rules for gifts to certain types of organizations and of certain kinds of property.

Interest—You may deduct interest paid on a home mortgage, bank loan, car loan or installment purchase. But, subject to certain limits, carrying or finance charges on installment purchases can be deducted only up to 6% of the average unpaid monthly balance.

Taxes—A wide variety of state and local taxes are deductible. These include real estate taxes, state and local income taxes and personal property taxes.

Casualty losses — You may deduct a property loss from a storm, fire, flood, theft or accident, if it wasn't covered by insurance. But the law requires you to absorb the first $100 of each non-business loss before claiming a deduction.

Moving expenses — You may deduct moving expenses if you moved to a new residence because you changed jobs or if you were transferred by your employer. Self-employed persons may also deduct these expenses. These include, in addition to the amount you paid to the moving van operator, the cost of traveling including meals and lodging for premove house-hunting trips, expenses for meals and lodging while in temporary quarters at your new location for up to 30 days after obtaining employment; certain expenses incidental to the sale of a residence or settlement of a lease at the old job location and to the purchase of a house or acquisition of a lease at the new job location. There are limitations on the deduction for certain categories of moving expenses. Some of the categories are new in the law this year.

Proud Attempts To Revive Millard Annexation Bill

Omaha Sen. Richard Proud moved in the Legislature Wednesday to revive his Millard annexation bill, killed last week by the Urban Affairs Committee.

Action on the revival motion was deferred.

The bill, LB159, would have required a majority approving vote of registered voters in the two cities before Omaha could annex Millard.

Proud has since introduced an alternative bill, somewhat revised, and has said he will push for the second bill if he falls short in efforts to revive LB159.

Need help from Action Line readers: I am seeking information about buildings made of railroad ties in Nebraska.

ACTION LINE: Welsch can be reached at Nebraska Wesleyan University, 466-2371.

Why was a company headed by a man who recently worked for the State Purchasing Department and could possibly have written the purchase order for the new capitol surveillance system, selected to install the new equipment? His was not the lowest total bid, even though he did submit the low bid for work in the old Senate gallery. On the ground floor work, there were four bids lower than his, yet he received the entire contract. —H. G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The man to whom you refer — Robert Ruyle — worked for the Nebraska Council for Educational Television as school technical advisor until November, 1970 when he entered into partnership with Vid-A-Comm Systems, Inc. He had no part in selection of the sealed bids submitted for the Statehouse surveillance system, says Purchasing Agent Willard Wells, and never worked for the State Purchasing Dept.

S. E. McGinnis, director of the Telecommunications Division, State Dept. of Administrative Services, recommended to the purchasing department that the lowest bid be rejected for the following reasons: not meeting specifications that the equipment provide a sharp picture with illumination of a .5 foot candle; did not include cost of 110 volt 60-cycle outlets for cameras or consoles in the quoted price as specifications for the job required.

The Vid-A-Comm bid, just under $16,000, was next lowest and since the job was to be let as one job, it was accepted, according to Wells.

Installation began Jan. 3 and is now complete.

Why is the automatic gear shift always on the right side of the auto's steering column? My small child slipped against the lever while I was driving 70 mph and threw the auto into reverse. Luckily I was able to control the auto and no wreck happened. What ever became of the push-button gear shift, by the way? M. G., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: The gear shift is on the right side because most people are right-handed, says Clark Ewing, product information supervisor in the Chrysler Corp. engineering department at Detroit, Michigan.

Chrysler introduced the push botton gear mechanism as a safety feature in the mid-1950's and remained with it until 1964. Push buttons for gears were located on the left side of the steering column on the dash, but marketing surveys proved that most people just would not accept the push buttons. Since the feature was not selling and the auto company is in the business of selling cars, push buttons were out.

Most automatic gears have the reverse separate from the forward or park indicator as a partial safety precaution.

Best bet is to keep the youngster away from the gear shift.

I understand Congress is considering legislation that would protect credit card holders in the event the card is lost or stolen. What is the scoop. —C. C., Lincoln

ACTION LINE: Congress has already acted.

Under legislation which became effective Jan. 21 with amendments to the Truth-In-Lending Act, the limit of an individual's liability on any single lost or stolen credit card is $50 whether or not the credit card firm is notified of the loss.

In addition, with an effort toward knocking down distribution of unsolicited credit cards, the new law: requires companies to send identification forms to card users which are to be returned in self-addressed, prestamped envelopes when a card is lost and companies to notify users of their liability under the law; requires all new credit cards to include some form of "positive" identification such as a color photo, signature or electonic coding; and if companies do not send identification and notification forms, the card holder cannot be held liable for any unauthorized charges.

What is the official Post Office abbreviation for Nebraska? I use Neb. —Wondering, Lincoln

ACTION LINE: About a year ago, the Post Office Dept. changed the abbreviation given to Nebraska from NB (which was causing Nebraska mail to be sent to New Brunswick) to NE, according to the office of Postmaster Kenneth Lewis.

For example, an address would include: Lincoln, NE 68502.

This Week's Health Tip

Here is a health tip from the Nebraska State Medical Association:

Congenital heart defects are those present at birth. In this situation, the heart or a major blood vessel near the heart fail to mature normally during the period of growth prior to birth. There is an error of development in which the arteries and veins in the heart-lung system are put together incorrectly.

Over 30,000 children are born with heart defects in the United States each year. Mild inborn defects may never cause trouble, but serious ones may interfere with circulation of the blood, slow the child's growth, and reduced his energy.

Because of great progress in heart surgery, most patients with congenital heart defects can be restored to normal or near normal health.

Nudity Restricted

Frankfort, Ky. (AP) — The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has imposed specific restrictions on the nudity and gestures of tavern go-go girls.

Name Change To Technical Colleges OKd

By The Associated Press

Vocational technical schools in Nebraska are renamed "technical colleges" under a bill which the Legislature Wednesday passed 45-0 on final reading and sent to Gov. J. J. Exon for signature into law.

For example, the Western Nebraska Vocational Technical School in Sidney becomes the Western Nebraska Technical College.

The measure, LB163, was sponsored by Sens. Robert L. Clark of Sidney, Walter H. Epke of York and Maurice A. Kremer of Aurora.

The bill will take effect 90 days after adjournment of the current legislative session.

Seven other bills received final reading approval. Here's what they do:

—Increase from one mill to 2½ mills the maximum cemetery levy in second class cities and villages. LB38. Stull. 38-3.

—Eliminate motor vehicle tax refunds where amount involved is less than $2. LB45. Stull, Wiltse, Simpson, Burbach, Swanson, Elrod. 34-11.

—Permit cities and villages to make gifts to hospital districts. LB80. Wallwey. 42-3.

—Extend from 20 to 40 years the maximum period during which water bonds of second class cities and villages may run. LB83. Carstens. 37-4.

—Clarify procedures of the Professional Practices Commission and State Board of Education with respect to teacher standards. LB103. Orme, Elrod, Waldo. 45-0.

—Permit a person to receive more than one duplicate driver's license in the event of loss. LB134. Duis. 45-0.

—Repeal provisions of law covering tuition payments by nonresidents at junior colleges. LB138. Duis. 42-0.

Syas: Bill Is Reapportionment Vehicle

State Sen. George Syas of Omaha said Wednesday the purpose of a bill he co-sponsored is only to give the Unicameral a vehicle to achieve reapportionment of state legislative districts.

Syas and State Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway sponsored the bill, which calls for 50 districts instead of the present 49. The extra district, according to the bill, would be formed by Sioux and Dawes Counties.

"We know those two counties don't have enough people to actually become a district," Syas said.

"But in order to bring the matter to the floor, he had to make some change to the present laws," he said. "This is only a vehicle — a skeleton bill for the senators to work on."

Addict Frostbitten

Tulsa, Okla. (UPI) — A young Tulsa man, high on an apparent overdose of drugs, was arrested wandering nude in near-zero temperatures near the Arkansas River. Officers said the man, Edgar J. Mullen, 20, seemed to think he was on a sandbar and that it was summer. Doctors said Mullen may lose several toes due to frostbite.

Bill To Establish Juvenile Division Advanced

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Legislature Wednesday changed its mind and decided to consider spending bills as they come to the floor rather than pocketing them for later debate.

Following their 25-18 decision to rescind the earlier policy, senators gave initial 26-18 approval to a bill which would create an independent Division of Juvenile Delinquency within the Department of Public Institutions.

The proposal, LB84, had been opposed in committee by the Exon administration largely because of its increased costs, estimated at $25,000 to $30,000 a year.

Independent Director

In effect, the bill would take the Boys Training School and Girls Training School away from the direct supervision of the director of corrections, Maurice Sigler, and place their control under an independent deputy director of juvenile delinquency.

"The idea is to separate juvenile problems from adult problems," Sen. Fred Carstens of Beatrice said.

Sen. Paul Morgan of Omaha failed to win legislative approval for an amendment which would have provided background qualifications for the juvenile delinquency deputy, but left the director of corrections in charge of the division and the two juvenile institutions.

"The director of the Penal Complex has more problems now than he knows what to do with," Carstens argued in opposing Morgan's plan.

When Morgan objected to further consideration of the bill at this time due to its fiscal impact, Sen. George Syas of Omaha won approval to wipe out an earlier decree which prevented senators from acting on spending measures.

Earlier in the session, lawmakers had adopted a motion, offered by Sen. Herb Duis of Gothenburg, to withhold floor action on all bills with a fiscal impact of more than $5,000 pending recommendations from their Rules Committee.

"If we hold all these bills, we're going to get into a lot of trouble," Syas said. "This is the greatest possible handicap to the budget processes.

Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha marveled at the Legislature's sudden change of mind. Perhaps freshmen senators should withhold their votes on such motions for two weeks until minds are settled, he said.

In the meantime, he said, he would "go get myself a cup of coffee." And Chambers left the chamber, returning in time to vote on the motion to advance LB84.

Action Deferred On Interpreters For Deaf

By The Associated Press

The Legislature Wednesday deferred action on a bill which would provide interpreters for deaf and handicapped persons involved in legal proceedings.

The measure is LB140, sponsored by Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln.

The bill came up for first floor consideration Wednesday, and Sen. Orme asked that it be held for later consideration of amendments.

Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter took issue with the bill, saying he approved of its intention to provide aid for deaf persons, but he pointed out it would provide interpreters for all persons who have comprehension problems.

"Anybody can qualify for aid under the provisions of this bill," Carpenter said. "Can you visualize the tax burden it will place on every county in the state?"

Sen. Orme attempted to amend the bill on the floor and began reading a long list of amendments.

However, after a suggestion by Carpenter that the amendments be written and the amended version distributed to legislators, she asked that the bill be held for later consideration.

Budget Committee Told NU Student Newspaper Couldn't Survive If Financial Aid Withdrawn

By MILAN WALL
Star Staff Writer

Members of the Unicameral's Budget Committee were told Wednesday that the student newspaper at the University of Nebraska "could not survive without financial support similar to that which it now receives."

Echoing comments made earlier by students associated with the Daily Nebraskan, Political Science Prof. Adam C. Breckinridge said the death of the publication "would end a means of expression and communication vital to a university community."

The testimony came during a hearing on LB70, a bill sponsored by Sen. Terry Carpenter which would withdraw from the publication the financial support it now receives through student fees.

In earlier testimony, students who said they support the bill told the committee that the paper should be allowed to live or die on the basis of subscriptions or sales

"Too often the paper becomes the tool of the editor," Student Sen. Bruce Wimmer said, and the "coverage becomes tainted."

Claiming the paper is "not responsive to those who it is supposed to serve," Wimmer told the senators "the bill will reaffirm the Legislature as the prime guardian of the people's money."

He said "the regents have done nothing" to change what he said he considered poor news coverage and biased reporting. "The Legislature should," Wimmer added.

Another student said he believed forcing all students to contribute to the support of the paper constituted a violation of civil rights.

Other students, however, told the committee that the evidence available indicates students are contented with the paper.

A student member of the NU publications board, which hires the Nebraskan's chief staff members, said the board had fielded few complaints about the publication.

The current editor of the paper, known by students as the "Rag," said the "university has control" of the paper through the publications board, and he said the board has exercised its discretion on occasion when the paper printed items it felt were in bad taste.

Editor Mick Moriarty said if the Daily Nebraskan does not survive, "the university has no control over any paper on that campus."

"The guarantees are there," he said, "if they don't work, perhaps its the fault of the educational system."

Breckinridge, a former academic dean at NU, said he sometimes disagrees with the paper, but he said "the purpose of the news media is not to please me or to please anyone."

University attorney Charles Oldfather, who did not get a chance to testify before the hearing was ended, said the Board of Regents opposes the bill.

Carpenter told the committee if it didn't "report this bill out," the Legislature will be responsible "for whatever happens from this time on."

The committee took no action on the bill, however, and Chairman Richard Marvel did not say when the committee would consider it.

Two other bills, LB71 and 72, were also held by the committee.

Both Carpenter's, they would require the university and the state colleges to "specify the use" of funds in budget requests.

University and state colleges spokesmen said they believed the bills' wording to be vague, and they said they feared the measures might endanger the schools' flexibility in accepting federal grants not specified in appropriations bills.

POSTCARD by Stan Kaplan

Taiwan was called Formosa by the discovering Portugese navigators. It is 280 miles long, 85 miles wide. It has 14 million Chinese and 250,000 aborigines.

The majority of United Nations members recognize it as China. This takes a lot of political wisdom, since the members must ignore mainland China with 600 million Chinese only 90 miles across the straits.

Some of the member nations are slipping. Feeling that Big China may be more important in world affairs than the island China.

"It makes a difference in our plans for world routes," said a China Airlines man.

"If a country recognizes Red China diplomatically, we have no diplomat to negotiate landing rights."

China Airlines is expanding. Its jets fly daily from Taipei to San Francisco, Tokyo and Anchorage. In a few months they'll go to Los Angeles.

There are 14 flights a week to Hong Kong; 13 weekly to Tokyo.

"What we would like," said the China Airlines man, "is a flight every hour to Hong Kong. A commute service."

Hong Kong Chinese have big investments on Taiwan.

"The weather is not always like this, sir," said the desk clerk in the President Hotel.

It's been raining for a week. A dripping, sad rain. Chill as icewater.

It rains 15 days a month on Taiwan. Winter and summer.

The difference is the rain in summer is warm. It's a subtropical island. The markets are full of bananas. Golden papayas with a musky fruity flavor. Taiwan exports pineapples.

☆ ☆ ☆

On international flights — Tokyo-Hong Kong, Tokyo-Manila — a passenger can stop off here at no extra cost.

Taiwan is anxious to spread this word. Soldiers from Vietnam spent $47 million on leave during the past five years. But this is falling off as troops are sent home.

Taiwan's tourists are mainly Japanese. They find the prices here delicious after the high cost of Tokyo. Excellent rooms go for $7 in hot springs resorts like Peitou.

I find a smatter of Japanese gets by. English often fails.

☆ ☆ ☆

It's Chinese New Year. Firecrackers banging in the dripping morning.

A sign on my door says: "The management regrets inconvenience of service because some of our employes are taking a New Year vacation."

☆ ☆ ☆

Service is excellent—if it's better after New Year it must be superb.

Breakfast comes to the room promptly. There is no tipping — a 10% service charge goes on your bill. The room boys and waitresses never imply that more is expected.

☆ ☆ ☆

Restaurants are inexpensive. And this is the greatest Chinese restaurant town in the world. Refugee cooks from all the provinces brought their cooking to Taipei.

The room clerk said happily: "In Taipei nobody pays any attention to the rain."

I believe that. What else can you do?

BOOKS—

"Whose Heaven—Whose Earth?"

BY INDIRA SINGH

Four years ago, Thomas Melville was a dedicated priest—a Maryknoll missionary who for years had worked among Indians in the remote mountain villages of Guatemala. And Marjorie Melville was a nun who taught in Catholic schools in Guatemala City for 13 years.

Today they are married, have been expelled from Guatemala, and just a week ago finished a two year prison sentence. Part of the famed "Catonsville Nine" they were convicted along with Father Phillip Berrigan of destroying draft board files in protest against American foreign policy.

"Whose Heaven, Whose Earth?" is their autobiography. It traces with rare candor their lives as revolutionaries in robes. Recalling his childhood in a devout Boston Irish family, Thomas Melville writes that his one and only ambition was to become a "rough-and-ready missionary." The lure of foreign lands and adventure reinforced his faith and as a young priest he was assigned to a mountain parish in Guatemala. With an overpowering zeal he went around eradicating every trace of Mayan superstition and ritual that was a singular part of his Indian parishioners. His fanatacism became such that even the church authorities considered he had gone too far, and he was nearly sent home in disgrace. Only then did he start listening to the Indians themselves, to learn their wants and needs, as human beings, and to reshape his view of his own mission.

For Sister Mariam Peter (Marjorie Melville, the conversion to political action came about in a different way. She had arrived in Guatemala with dreams of helping the poor, but found herself instead assigned to teach the daughters of the rich. In trying to awaken the social conscience of these girls, she became deeply involved with the poor, and with the guerrilla leaders who were the defenders of the poor.

The Melvilles' individual stories tell of increasing outrage and frustration, in the face of government and church indifference, which dramatically culminates in Baltimore with the burning of draft files.

The book is interesting and fast paced, but at times it lacks conviction. It is a question of personal beliefs, whether one agrees with the ideas presented, for it is often difficult to fathom those who dedicate their lives as champions of causes. The values of humanity always have been in constant opposition with dogmas and ideologies. Yet, one cannot afford to be complacent. Every man feels the weight of the world, but there are only a few who instinctively make it their destiny.

The question posed by the title of this book is one that can never be fully answered. Causes are born everyday — heaven and earth are full of challenges and wrongs that need to be righted. The lives of Thomas and Marjorie Melville, just tell of one such attempt.

Handwriting Can Tell Tales

New York — Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, Mrs. Richard M. Nixon, Helen Gurley Brown and Mary Martin — unique personalities — get uniform attention from Dr. Herry O. Teltscher.

The psychographologist and psychoanalyst, in "handwriting — revelation of self" gives his views of each woman's handwriting which he prefers to call "brain-writing."

"The hand merely holds the pen or the pencil," he said in an interview. "It is the brain that directs the movements of the hand."

A letter written from the White House in 1961, specimen 338 in the book, by the then Mrs. Kennedy was excerpted for the analysis. It was a thank you note to "Dear M."

"The script depicts Jacqueline Kennedy as a cultured woman whose interests range over a broad spectrum," Teltscher said. "The strong, large-sized script, the strong pressure . . . are all indicative of her need for securing motoric outlets for her energy by constant traveling, visiting new places and exposing herself to a variety of ventures."

Teltscher said handwriting revealed in two notes penned by Mrs. Nixon in 1963 provide a wide contrast to the bold, flourished, backhand style of Mrs. Onassis.

Mrs. Nixon's script is small, simple, unadorned and slants forward. "The over-all observation is that of a woman who finds satisfaction in her home, one who prefers to stay in the background rather than search for publicity or glaring headlines," Teltscher said.

"The portrait that emerges is that of an intelligent, balanced woman who perceives things in their proper proportion."

Helen Gurley Brown, editor of "Cosmopolitan" and author of "Sex and the Single Girl" and "Sex and the New Single Girl," writes in a medium large, speedy script characterizing her as an alert woman, according to Teltscher.

"Her marvelous vitality and resilience are indicated in her firm pen pressure, the large globular loops," he added.

Such characteristics are said by the authority to portray the successful, creative and at times skeptical modern woman who manages to combine even contradictory features to best advantage.

As for Mary Martin, the beloved actress admired by children and adults for her unforgettable characterization of Peter Pan, Teltscher said, analyzing her signature:

"The firmness and the angularity of the signature denote Miss Martin's determination in the pursuit of her plans." The signature also signifies, to Teltscher, that Miss Martin will always set herself a goal toward which she strives."

You might think just from what you've read about the four prominent women that you could have come up with such words about them without looking at samples of their handwriting. Maybe so. But Teltscher says psychographology is a science and of value.

A number of firms among 500 who call on psychographologists to analyze handwriting of prospective employes have him on the payroll as a consultant. One is a trucking firm.

In the 10 years he has been advising which driver prospects not to hire, the firm's accident rate has dropped.

Southwood Trendwood Park Manor in suburban areas

Valentine's Day rapidly is approaching and that little cupid soon will be aiming his arrow straight into the hearts of men and women and boys and girls throughout the land. It is the day of hearts and flowers, candy and greeting cards. No matter how you look at it, well-known sweethearts, and secret admirers, will be revealed on that day devoted to lovers.

The tradition of Valentine's Day lends a ready theme to most February get-togethers, with heart-shaped decorations and many red-tinted tasty treats.

Capitalizing on the timeliness of entertaining, Valentine's Day was the theme when Mrs. Larry A. Witt of Southwood entertained the Game Bidders bridge group at her home just last evening. The players, all wives of Game Commission employes, were treated to an evening of bridge and a dessert.

Found gathered around the three bridge tables were Mrs. Bill Bailey, Mrs. Chuck Duncan, Mrs. Pat Foote, Mrs. Jack O'Keefe, Mrs. Richard Spady, Mrs. Del Whiteley, Mrs. Bob Fenemore, Mrs. Arnold Sohn, Mrs. Jack Strain, Mrs. Earl Kendle, and Mrs. Dale Bree.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Schleich recently returned to their Trendwood home from a two-week vacation to San Diego, Calif., and Phoenix, Ariz. And their return was just in time to avoid the sudden California earthquake that took its toll, even in San Diego.

While in the California city, they attended a convention of the Board of Realtors — and also took in their share of sight seeing and enjoyed some of the night sights there.

En route home they stopped in Phoenix where they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Carlson, who are former Omahans.

Getting to know persons from a culture other than our own is an enlightening experience and we can learn a lot about the others as well as ourselves when we expose ourselves to different cultures and peoples.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Dennis of Park Manor are learning much about the life style in Colombia from their houseguest, Miss Clara Paez who hails from Bogota.

The 18-year-old Miss Paez is residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis while she attends Northeast High School where she is a sophomore.

What do you know about back-pack camping, particularly in the winter months? Well, when the editors of Nebraskaland Magazine set out to explain the whole thing — through pictures and words — they invited Dennis Nelson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Nelson of Park Manor, and his friend, Scott Wittstruck, to accompany them on a camping spree.

just between us

Dear Woman's Editor,

From time to time in 'just between us' I have read letters from people who have things on their mind, and today I have something on mine.

First I want to congratulate Congressman Charles Thone for his stand on Lincoln's old city hall.

"I want to be convinced," he said. "And I am not convinced.

Everytime I go by that old, old building I shudder to think of what may happen to it. Why can't we leave it there as a symbol of what has been. Personally I find the building very attractive, and definitely I think it would fit in beautifully with someone's marvelous idea of "Haymarket Square.

What is wrong with Lincoln? There scarcely is a vestige of tradition left in it. We are so bent on tearing down the old, spending fabulous amounts for the new that we lose sight of history.

Why can't that old city hall building be used as a city museum — we have one State Museum. Or, why can't we use it as an art gallery for Lincoln artists? I think that would attract considerable attention, and it certainly would be something for people to see and admire much more than they would another hideous parking lot.

Maybe the interior of the building does need a going over. Has anyone ever asked if some of our excellent construction people would be willing to give some time now and then to doing what is necessary? I'll venture a guess that there are many who would be more than willing to donate their services.

Let's make this a project, Lincoln, and see if we can't preserve even a tiny bit of tradition.

I'll never recover from seeing Old U Hall demolished. That building, the first on the University of Nebraska campus, would now be more than a 100 years old. It, too, could have been revamped for use on the inside, but kept its picturesque appearance on the outside. It is a little sickening.

They Also Were Graduated

When the members of the Engineering Students Wives Club held their meeting last Monday evening there was no conversational lag. This, of course, because too many interesting things had transpired.

Each member present had been a belle at the graduation banquet which was held not too long ago. And before the banquet each member had received a diploma — not for her talents as an engineer, but because she kept steadfastly to fact that she was the wife of a graduating senior in the University of Nebraska College of Engineering.

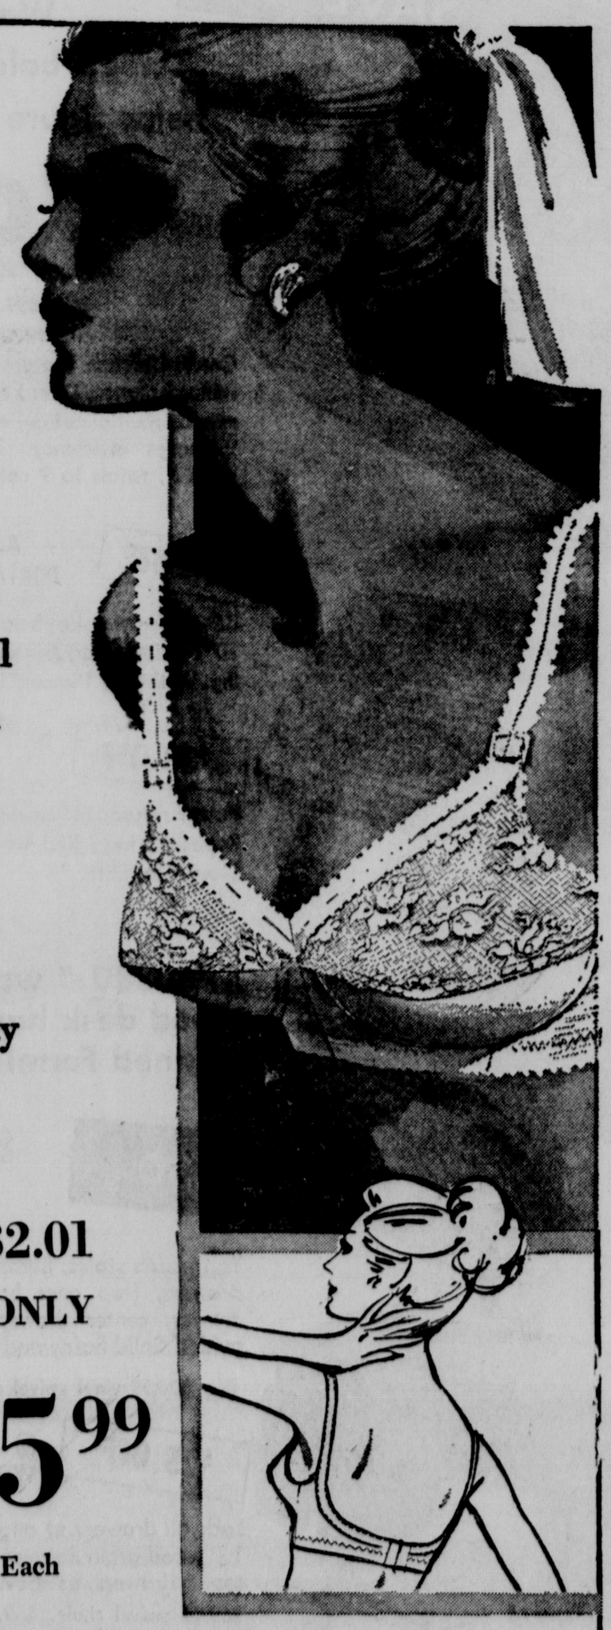

There were some vacant chairs at the meeting on Monday evening. Five members of the pictured group have gone. Their husbands have taken engineering positions here and there throughout the country. But there were those whose husbands entered Graduate School immediately following graduation and their wives, of course, are still active in the club.

The speaker at the banquet was Dr. William Scheller of the department of chemical engineering at the University of Nebraska.

FOOD soup-er meat loaf

Often the gourmet cook brightens the meat platter with a gay garnish for a roast. Or in the case of meat loaf, color can be built in with the inclusion of bright ingredients such as pimiento or green pepper.

This Soup-er Meat Loaf illustrates the point in a manner colorful and flavorful as well. Bright bits of pimiento are included in both the beef loaf mixture and in the mushroom soup that also serves as a sauce.

Rice, the quick-cooking kind, bakes to tenderness along with the beef in the loaf. It's seasoned with discretion with onion and savory and a portion of the mushroom soup.

Glazed carrots and buttered peas add more color to the dinner plates, while a salad of tomato and avocado wedges and greens adds another bright note. Complete the main course with a double golden feature — cornbread squares and butter. Color the dessert orange and red with orange sherbet topped with strawberries, fresh or frozen.

Start making the grocery list for it's a delicious meal as well as a colorful one.

SOUP-ER MEAT LOAF

2 pounds ground beef
⅓ cup packaged pre-cooked (instant) rice
1 medium-sized onion, finely chopped
2 eggs
1½ teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 teaspoon savory
1 can (10¾-ounces) condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 jar (4 ounces) pimientos, drained and coursely chopped
Milk
1 teaspoon parsley flakes

Combine beef, rice, onion, eggs, salt, pepper, savory, ½ cup mushroom soup and ¼ cup chopped pimiento. Mix until evenly blended. Line the bottom and sides of a 9x5-inch loaf pan with waxed paper. Press meat mixture evenly into pan. Turn onto a rack in a shallow roasting pan. Remove waxed paper. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F) 1 hour and 15 minutes. Let stand 10 minutes before transferring to serving platter. Add enough milk to the remaining mushroom soup to make 1 cup. Cook over low heat until mixture simmers. Stir in remaining diced pimientos and parsley flakes. Serve with meat loaf. 8 servings.

Flair Added To Crust

Give your favorite cream pie new flair with a different pie shell. Bread crumbs, Graham crackers, ginger snaps and vanilla and chocolate cookie wafers all make delicious crumb crusts. One 9-inch pie shell requires 1⅓ cups crumbs and ⅓ cup melted butter. To put spark into a bread crumb crust, add 1 teaspoon cinnamon and ¼ cup each of finely chopped nuts and firmly packed light brown sugar to the crumbs.

Zippy Winter Treat

Turkey Ole is a hearty winter casserole with a Mexican flavor. A zesty sauce, easily made with an envelope of chili mix, compliments the mild flavor of the turkey and garbanzo beans.

TURKEY-OLE

1 enevolpe (1¾ oz.) chili mix
1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes
¼ cup water
1 tablespoon salad oil
1 to 1½ cups cut-up cooked turkey
1 can (1 lb.) garbanzo beans
¼ cup chopped ripe olives

Combine chili mix, tomatoes, water and oil in large skillet. Stir in turkey, undrained beans, and olives. Bring to a boil; simmer 10 minutes. 4 to 6 servings.

Cheese Cake

The Continentals have long chosen fruit and cheese for dessert, but the Americans like their sweets. Happily, Creamy Apple Cheesecake will delight any culture with its mellow taste of sweetened cream cheese and fresh apples.

A cheesecake novice may think these concoctions are difficult because they are so delicious. Not at all! And who could tell while savoring this lucious dessert that it is a clever use for leftover bread?

A crust of bread crumbs and ground almonds hints of marzipan but in a crisp and crunchy form. A layer of succulent apples and the characteristic creamy, melt-in-the-mouth cheese filling complete this simple, but elegant, dessert.

CREAMY APPLE CHEESECAKE

8 to 10 servings

1½ cups enriched fine dry bread crumbs
½ cup ground blanched almonds
¼ cup sugar
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
½ cup melted butter
½ teaspoon vanilla extract
1 apple, cored and thinly sliced
2 packages (3 oz. each) cream cheese, softened
½ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 tablespoon enriched flour
¾ teaspoon vanilla extract
½ teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 teaspoons lemon juice
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup half and half, scalded

Mix together bread crumbs, almonds, ¼ cup sugar, ½ teaspoon lemon rind, butter and ½ teaspoon vanilla extract. Press mixture into bottom and on sides of 9x1½-inch cake pan with removable bottom. Bake in preheated 400 degree oven 8 to 10 minutes, or until lightly browned. Arrange apple slices over baked crust. Blend together cream cheese, ½ cup sugar, egg yolks, flour, vanilla, lemon rind and juice and salt. Beat in half and half. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; gently fold into cheese mixture. Pour into baked crust. Bake in preheated 300 degree oven about 1½ hours, or until set. Refrigerate 2 hours before serving.

Leftovers

A corn meal pastry shell can turn a melange of leftovers into a main dish pie. Mix ¾ cup of enriched corn meal and enriched flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅓ cup shortening and 3 to 5 tablespoons water as for regualr pastry. Bake in preheated 425° oven 15 to 28 minutes, or until lightly browned. Some cooks like to roll dough between two sheets of waxed paper, then fit carefully into the dish and fill.

Abby: know the fixer-upper

DEAR ABBY: Please say something about married men on the prowl who lie about their marital status.

Speaking for myself and half a dozen of my friends (all widows, divorcees and unmarrieds, fairly attractive and under 40) we don't want to get involved with married men. But what can we do when coworkers, customers, salesmen, etc. introduce us to a "nice, eligible man," only to find out after three or four dates that this rat has a wife and family in the suburbs?

Does an unmarried woman have to turn into a private investigator before accepting a date with a man who poses as a nice, eligible bachelor?

So what should we do about these rats?

HOODWINKED

DEAR HOODWINKED: Which rats? The ones who introduce married men as "nice, eligible bachelors"? Or the married men who try to pull a fast one? The only protection a girl has against being "hoodwinked," is to be a little more fussy about whom she dates.

A good rule to follow: Never accept a fixed up date unless you know you can trust the fixer-upper.

DEAR ABBY: I could love you for your answer to "In Need of Sympathy," the woman who was worn out from having nursed a sick husband for so many months. She resented being asked constantly, "How is your husband?" She wrote to you saying she wished someone would ask her how she was. So you asked her how she was.

That reminds me of the two old friends, Manny and Max, who hadn't seen each other for 20 years. When they met again, the first thing Manny asked Max was, "How's business?"

Max replied, "Is that the way to greet an old friend after 20 years? Why don't you ask me how my health is?"

Manny said, "I'm sorry, Max. How's your health?"

Max answered, "Don't ask."

CORDIALLY, SOL

DEAR SOL: You bring back memories. My father used to tell that story 35 years ago.

Opening lead — nine of clubs.

It is not easy to make six hearts even if you look at all four hands. And it's more difficult, of course, if you have to plot your course without this advantage.

Nevertheless, the proper method of play will land the contract whether or not you see the defenders' cards.

Declarer starts with eleven sure tricks — seven hearts, two clubs and two aces. Stated differently, he has two losers — both diamonds.

By far the simplest way of trying to avoid one of the diamond losers is to finesse the queen in the hope that West was dealt the king. However, this method of play offers only a 50% shot at the contract — and a competent declarer is always disinclined to settle for merely an even chance without first investigating other means of play that might increase the likelihood of success.

So, without relinquishing the possibility of an eventual diamond finesse, declarer adopts a method of play designed to circumvent the finesse and in that way eliminate the element of luck.

He wins the club lead with the king, plays a club to the ace, and ruffs a club high. It is now only trick three, but South is already 100% certain of making the slam.

A low heart to the queen is followed by another club ruff. Declarer then draws two rounds of trumps and leads his singleton spade towards dummy. After West follows low, South inserts the ten. East wins, but whether he returns a spade or a diamond South has the twelfth trick he is looking for.

If West plays the king on the first spade lead, the outcome is the same. Declarer wins with the ace and returns the jack to force out the queen, and again has twelve tricks.

Why Grow Old?

Today I want to bring you a few "Trouble Shooting" exercises for some spots which may be giving you trouble. In a company, a "Trouble Shooter" is one who is an expert in his field and also knows how to soothe the rough spots in human relationships. These exercises will smooth some of the rough spots you may have in your figure.

THE CHINLINE — You would be wise to remember that posture has an important influence on your chinline. Avoid sticking your chin out or ducking it into your neck. Keep it parallel to the floor as a habit. These exercises will be beneficial, too.

1. Lie across your bed with your head and shoulders hanging off the side of the bed. Lift your head and touch your chin to your chest. Slowly lower your head, and continue eight times.

2. Place the palms of your hands against your forehead. Push forward with your head as you resist with your hands. Hold at the point of highest tension for eight counts.

3. Lower your head backward as far as comfortable. In this position chew in an exaggerated manner, opening your mouth widely. Repeat 20 times.

4. This exercise firms the neck as well as facial contour. Open your mouth widely and pull your lips back from your teeth. Now purse your lips forward. Pull your lips backward, and continue, very slowly.

If you do these four exercises regularly each day or night, remain aware of your posture, and give your neck efficient lubrication, you will be rewarded with a more youthful chinline and neck.

For an upper back which is too thin and protruding shoulder blades, follow these directions. If you are underweight a gain in poundage will be helpful. However, winged shoulder blades are the result of poor posture and weak muscles. Of course, underweight makes them more noticeable.

Desegregation School Aid 'Errors' Admitted

Washington (UPI) — Secretary Elliot L. Richardson of health, education and welfare Wednesday admitted "errors" in parcelling out desegregation aid to schools which have been charged with actually using the money to perpetuate segregation.

Richardson's concession before the Senate education subcommittee tended to support charges by six civil rights organizations which studied how 295 school districts used desegregation aid. The study last November said the groups found "no evidence of illegal practices" in only 29 districts.

Officials in HEW's Office of Civil Rights later told reporters that at least 53 of the 882 school districts, which received grants from the $75 million Congress appropriated last year to help schools overcome special problems arising from integrating, face a loss of their grants.

Eleven districts — six in Georgia, one in Alabama, three in Florida and one in South Carolina — have been given a "third warning" and 30 others face the loss of aid if they continue to fail to comply with the law, HEW said.

In addition, Richardson named two —Northampton County, Va., and Stewart County, Ga. — which he said "were clearly ineligible" for the aid they received through "administrative error" and will be asked for refunds.

Education Commissioner Sidney P. Marland Jr. told the senators the same "errors" would not happen again because of "safeguards" in the administration's new bill to provide an additional $1.5 billion in aid to desegregating schools over the next two years.

"Because of the dispatch with which funding determinations were made, errors did occur, which we readily concede," Richardson said.

"The decision to allocate the funds as quickly as possible to desegregating school districts was mine, and I take full responsibility for it."

Richardson said the money was not passed out carte blanche. He said 33 districts which asked for it were rejected, either for ineligibility or because they refused to give the required assurances that they would move toward total desegregation.

But the secretary defended the decision to grant $1.3 million to the schools of Jackson, Miss. The civil rights groups charged Jackson officials "loaned" textbooks to a segregated, newly established private school shortly after receiving the federal grant.

Richardson said that since the textbooks were the property of the state of Mississippi and not the school district, the law had not been violated.

STORY AT LEFT

Nixon Is Asked To Freeze Rents, Wages, Prices

Washington (UPI) —Speaker Carl Albert and the House Democratic leadership asked President Nixon Wednesday to impose immediately a temporary freeze on wages, prices, rents and interest to control inflation.

At a news conference, Albert was joined by Democratic Leader Hale Boggs, D-La., and Whip Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., in denouncing Nixon's anti-inflation program as a "failure."

They also announced a congressional drive would start to extend for two years Nixon's authority to institute controls over wages and prices.

Negatively Rated Conservative Controls Dollars For All Environment Programs

The New York Times

Washington — A Mississippi conservative with a negative voting record on conservation issues has been given the foremost congressional voice in the funding of all federal environment and consumer protection programs.

The chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, Rep. George H. Mahon of Texas, disclosed Wednesday that he had placed these programs under the jurisdiction of his agriculture subcommittee, which is headed by Rep. Jamie L. Whitten.

Whitten, who has exercised enormous authority over farm programs for two decades, will thus be in control of appropriations for such agencies as the new Environmental Protection Agency, the Council on Environmental Quality, the Food and Drug Administration and the Federal Trade Commission.

If he uses his authority as absolutely as he has over farm legislation, he will be able to determine to a large extent how much is spent by these agencies and what the money is spent for. All air and water pollution programs, among others, will be in his domain.

Whitten, a Democrat, has not played a leading role, one way or the other, on environmental issues in the past. But the League of Conservation Voters, which rates congressmen according to their votes on certain key issues, has given Whitten a strongly negative rating.

Mahon said Whitten was a "real conservationist" who had long been interested in "the survival of the countryside, the fading of land and the runoff of water into streams."

Despite Mahon's assessment of his subcommittee chairman, Whitten voted against the conservationist position on several key issues in the last Congress. He voted to fund the prototypes of the supersonic transport plane, to increase logging in national forests and against spending an extra $1 billion to fight water pollution.

Britain Prepares For New Money

London (UPI) — Britain's 14,500 bank branches and the stock exchange closed Wednesday for four days while the nation prepared with trepidation for a switchover Monday to a new decimal-based money.

All indications are that, despite a $3 million publicity campaign to explain the new system, millions of Britons still did not really understand it.

Peasants Perish

Lima, Peru (AP) — Police disclosed Wednesday that 24 peasants perished in a landslide near Cuzco, 600 miles southeast of Lima.

Retaining Cabinet Level Ag Post Given Support

The Nebraska Agricultural Council gave strong support to the action of the state legislature in opposing the removal of the secretary of agriculture from the President's cabinet.

The council members at the meeting Wednesday represented the National Farmers Organization (NFO), the Nebraska Farmers Union, the Nebraska Grange and a number of commodity groups.

The council resolved to support the 20% figure on land to be held out of feed grain production under the set-aside program of the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA).

USDA Scolded

The farm group scolded the USDA for the delay in announcing the set-aside figure, citing the problems in planning for farmers and farm suppliers caused by the lack of information on acres to be planted.

The farm group described the cut in the Agricultural Conservation Payment (ACP) under the new Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) as unwise.

The Council sent a request to the Office of Management and Budget to have the spending level restored to the amount spent on the ACP program in past years.

The council also discussed a number of bills before the Nebraska Legislature covering agriculture.

These included LB725 which would permit 14 and 15 year old farm youngsters to operate farm equipment on the roads and highways upon completion of a training course in equipment operation.

LB391 Opposed

The council expressed opposition to LB391 concerning hauling livestock, describing the bill as unenforceable and unnecessary.

Elton Berck, president of the Farmers Union, expressed concern over the future of the University of Nebraska under the Governor's budget.

Said Berck, "I really don't think the governor did his homework on this one. I personally know of university people who work 60 to 65 hours a week. Such people can hardly take on additional duties which the governor has suggested."

Berck added that at present there is not enough strength in the legislature to override the governor's budget.

The council decided to ask for an early meeting with the people at the university responsible for setting the budget for the various services to agriculture carried on by the extension service and by the research staff at the experiment stations.

Snowmobile Limitations

Alas, snowmobile operators will be forced to register their machines with the motor vehicle department and will be restricted as far as their usage of their snowmobile is concerned.

State Senator John DeCamp has introduced a bill to the legislature, LB330, that will establish the rights of snowmobile operators while at the same time, limit their usage of the machines to specific areas.

A lot of nice things could be said about the bill . . . the state will receive $8.00 every three years from each snowmobile owner for the registration fee, safety equipment will have to be installed, and the harassing of wildlife will be curtailed.

But how about the section of the law giving the age of the operator? Will the snowmobile be classified as a motor vehicle and if so, will the same laws defining a motor vehicle and the usage of one be applied to a snowmobile? Will insurance be required?

Clarification Needed?

Unless the proposed bill is amended, a fourteen-year-old could operate a snowmobile if he could pass the proposed course for instructing operators on the use of their machines.

Perhaps the same age limitations for operating a motor vehicle should apply for snowmobiles. After all, can't someone be killed as easily in a snowmobile as they can in a car?

Sen. DeCamp has gone to great pains to define a snowmobile and suggest the limitations that should be placed on their operations. He has taken into consideration the recreational value of the snowmobile, its value as a workhorse for government agencies, and its value as an emergency vehicle.

In short, the snowmobile could almost be considered the same as a four-wheel drive truck or jeep for the outdoorsman. And since the prospective buyer of a snowmobile has to pay taxes on the machine at the time of purchase, could not a system be established where the machine could be registered at the same time?

Now It's Here

But Nebraska has needed some law enforcing the usage of the snowmobile for some time now. In other states, operators had chased wildlife with their machines and destroyed state property with them, despite limitations those states set on their usage.

Perhaps the section of the proposed act dealing with the punishments that may be metted out for violating the law should be a little more severe.

But that would take the fun out of owning such a machine . . . limitations would be set economically on the amount of havoc that could be raised. A small fine ($100) for the violation of a section or paragraph of the law makes no great dent in someone's pocket.

Sen. DeCamp has taken the initiative, however, to try and do something about the mis-conduct of snowmobile operators and deserves a pat on the shoulder for finally bringing something to light that should have been done by his predecessors when the snowmobile first came into its own.

Conservationists and wildlife biologists had the foresight to see the damage that could be done through the misuse of a snowmobile. But it took a freshman senator to do something about it.

13 BEARS IN HALL OF FAME

. . . Chicago Will Have Complete Pro Team Enshrined

Chicago (AP) — The Chicago Bears, with end Bill Hewitt the latest addition, now can claim the only complete team lineup in pro football's Hall of Fame.

"We needed another end and the late Bill Hewitt rounds it out," commented owner George Halas Wednesday of a Bear array of 13 Hall of Fame members representing a formidable lineup — at least in the rugged days of one-platoon football.

Hewitt, fatally injured in a 1947 auto accident almost a decade after his playing days ended, was among seven new members named last week to the pro football shrine at Canton, Ohio. Who's the other end among the Bear Hall of Famers who spent the major part of their National Football League careers with the Chicago club?

None other than Halas himself, 76-year-old founder and former playing-coach of the Bears.

Said Halas: "Now in the Hall we have Sid Luckman as a quarterback; Red Grange and George McAfee as halfbacks, Bronco Nagurski at fullback, Bulldog Turner or George Trafton at center, Joe Stydahar and Link Lyman at tackles and Dan Fortmann and Ed Healey at guards.

"For a good spare halfback, there's Paddy Driscoll.

"That's 13 men which isn't far under the 18-player limit set by the then — young NFL from 1922 through 1924 when, incidentally, the league also set a salary limit of $1,800 for the entire squad."

Halas described Hewitt as "absolutely fearless," an all-league end, who played without a helmet for the Bears from 1932 until he was traded to Philadelphia in 1937. "He was a happy-go-lucky guy — until he stepped onto the field — and then he was a terror on offense or defense," recalled Halas. "He asked no quarter nor gave any."

Hewitt will be enshrined in the Hall July 31 along with the late Vince Lombardi, whose Green Bay Packers dominated the NFL in the 1960s, and five other players.

They include fullback Jim Brown, defensive end Andy Robustelli, quarterbacks Y. A. Tittle and Norm Van Brocklin and tackle Frank "Bruiser" Kinard.

Halas reminisced that Hewitt broke in with the Bears in the club's darkest financial hour.

"In 1932, we lost $300,000 and couldn't borrow from any bank," said Halas. "We had to write promissary notes of $1,000 each to pay off Nagurski, Grange and coach Ralph Jones, and I believe Hewitt took a note for $500. They all were paid off before the start of the 1933 season. "I even had to tap the savings accounts of my two youngsters, Mugsie and Virginia, for $600 set aside for their future. I'll have to check the records to see if I ever paid the kids back."

On top of that, Halas' partner and teammate, Dutch Sternaman, wanted to sell out in 1932 because of depression era pressure on his outside interests.

"I scraped $40,000 together and bought out Dutch," said Halas. "George Trafton's mother put up $20,000, and $5,000 each was put up by my mother, Jim McMillin, Charley Bidwill's nephew and Ralph Brizzolara.

"Those were the good old days when you need real motivation."

Halas thinks two more former star Bear ends, Ken Kavanaugh and Harlon Hill, "are bound to be in the Hall of Fame any year now."

Actually, four other players who had short tours with the Bears also are in the Hall. They include end Guy Chamberlain from Nebraska, 1920-21; quarterbacks Jimmy Conzelman, 1920 and Bobby Layne, 1948, and guard Walt Kiesling, 1934.

—PALMER ONE STROKE BACK—

Fleckman Leading Hope Classic Meet

Palm Springs, Calif. (AP) — Long-troubled Marty Fleckman carved out a six-under par 66 for a one-stroke lead over Arnold Palmer in the first round Wednesday of the five-day 90-hole Bob Hope Desert Classic golf tournament.

"It's probably the best round of my career," the darkly handsome 26-year-old from Port Arthur, Tex. said after his effort at LaQuinta, one of four desert courses being used in this marathon which carries a $140,000 total purse.

Palmer had a 67, also at LaQuinta, and was tied with four others for second place.

Italian rookie Roberto Bernardini and three relatively unknown regulars on the tour — Bill Brask, Joe Carr and Larry Wood — all played Indian Wells in 67.

Former PGA champion Ray Floyd, Ted Hayes and George Hixon, followed at 68. Hayes played Tamarisk, Floyd at LaQuinta and Hixon at Indian Wells.

The best score at Bermuda Dunes, the fourth course, was a 69 by several players.

Masters champion Billy Casper had a 71 while 1970's leading money winner, Lee Trevino, and Tom Shaw, the only double winner of this year, matched 72s, all at LaQuinta.

National Senior's champ Julius Boros had a 71 at Bermuda Dunes.

Under the unusual format for this event, the 136 pros all play one round on each of the four courses, shifting three-man amateur teams each day. After 72 holes, the field is cut to the low 70 pros for the finals at Bermuda Dunes.

Fleckman had a brilliant amateur career before turning professional in 1967. He won the first tournament in which he was eligible to receive money, the 1967 Cajun Classic, and was hailed as potentially one of the brightest young stars on the tour.

He was in the top 60 money winners the following year, then went into a decline the next, winning only $4,995.

"I'm playing a little bit better now," he said. "I'm driving a little better, scoring a little better. I'm encouraged."

Fleckman reeled off a string of three consecutive birdies, starting on the fourth hole. He rolled in a 15-footer there, a wedge to two feet on the next and got a two-putt birdie on the par-5 sixth.

He went four under with a 5-iron shot cut around a tree to within eight feet on the 10th, bogeyed the 11th when he missed the green, reached the par five 13th in two for another bird and closed with a 25-foot putt on the final hole.

Palmer, looking for his first victory in 14 months, armed himself with a new putter, a center-shafted blade which gave him only partial success.

"I putted good and bad," the 41-year-old great said.

The par fives were his key to his success. He played them six under par with two eagles and a pair of birdies. He chipped in from 50 feet for one eagle and knocked in a 12-foot putt after two big wood shots for the other.

He got a deuce with a 40-foot putt on the 16th but had two bogeys, missing the green and failing on three-foot putt each time.

Pershing Sport Show Has Something For All

By RANDY EICKHOFF
Star Sports Writer

Planning a vacation with your family? How about a spring bear hunt? Like to fish? Or even top-notch entertainment? Try the International Sport, Vacation, and Travel show at Pershing Auditorium sometime this week.

The show has everything dear to the sportsman's heart. Even the wife that's left behind during the outdoorsman's wanderings will find something that will interest her.

The show occupies both the upstairs and downstairs portions of the auditorium . . . filling each section to capacity.

The sportsman will find a display of the newest fishing rods, booths on hunting and fishing and a variety of boats and motorcycles that will boggle his mind.

Highlighting the show is the new motor home, the Discoverer 25, making its first appearance west of Detroit. The Discoverer is the ultimate in luxury for the sportsman who likes his camping and fishing with the minimum discomfort.

The Discoverer looks like a jet with the new aero-dynamic design that allows the motor home to get up to 11 miles-per-gallon on the open road.

Luxuries in the Discoverer include a shower-bath, stereo tape deck, a sun roof, outside and inside air, and a kitchen that is a housewife's dream.

Lincolnite Dick Shoemaker has the dealership for this area and visitors to the show will receive a special tour or demonstration through the utmost in mobile homes.

The discoverer will sleep four, but special fold-up bunks can be added to increase the sleeping capacity to six.

A 40-gallon holding tank will insure the traveler that he will never run out of water in-between the refilling stops.

But suppose the sportsman doesn't care for all this comfort. How about boats? Or motorcycles, or smaller campers, or. . .

Engel Stable Arrives At Fonner Park

. . . NEBRASKA HORSEMAN HAS 22 AFTER RECORD PURSE

Grand Island — The D. A. "Andy" Engel Stable of Silver Creek arrived in Grand Island this week for the opening of the 34 day meeting at Fonner Park, which opens on March 19 and runs thru April 28.

The Nebraska horseman will have 22 horses to send after the track's record purse distribution of $465,250.

Engel, a cattle feeder, has been racing horses for a number of years, but really went into the sport seriously last summer. The formation of the powerful stable started with the purchase of Swiss Policy during the Omaha meeting from C. E. "Chuck" Nichols.

He continued to add to the stable through the summer to bring it to its present strength to make the unit one of the strongest that will appear in Grand Island this spring.

In addition to Swiss Policy, Engel will be represented by Nopal 2nd and Junior Hopper. All three will be pointed for allowance and feature races.

Nopal 2nd will be pointed for the $6,000-added Fonner Mile to be run on April 24. The son of Niguel won two races during the 1970 racing season. The last victory was tallied at Ak-Sar-Ben while racing under a $12,500 claiming tag.

Engs Jan, Engs Foyle, and Curragh Green are the leading sophomores in the large stable. Engs Jan is nominated to the Fonner Park Special Stakes. Curragh Green, a possible nominee to the $6,000-added Nebraska Derby, won two races last summer at Rockingham Park.

The well balanced stable also includes Princess Antea, Imperial Way, Dews Little, Carrara Bolero, Soul Coaxing, Double Discovery, Jealous Justice, Country Comet, Gulia Princess, Good Relic, Sespes Jest, Dav's Dart, Dixworth, Cys Gross, and two unnamed Nebraska two-year olds.

Ted Ridenoure of Grand Island is Engel's trainer. Ridenoure served as a racing official in Nebraska for a number of years. He was in charge of the stable last year when it went East.

Offer Reported Made To Buy Suffolk Downs Race Track

Boston (AP) — An offer to purchase financially troubled Suffolk Downs was made public Wednesday after a closed-door session among various interested parties and the State Racing Commission.

The offer came from an organization known as National Raceways Inc., headed by James Edwards, a former owner of several race tracks in Maine, West Virginia and Ohio.

No details were disclosed, but Edwards said he expected to make an announcement within 24 hours.

"There will be a sale within 24 hours or there won't be one at all," he added.

Edwards and William Connell, vice president of the Ogden Corp., both attending the meeting with the commission. Connell said the proposed sale did not involve his corporation, and he was there merely to preserve the food concession that Ogden now has at Suffolk Downs and to assist financially.

Edwards, who at present is director of the Ogden Recreational Division, declined to say whether he would sever his connection with that company should the sale go through.

The track, currently owned by Suffolk Downs Realty Equities Inc., was disclosed last month to be some $14 million in debt.

The racing commission, which had to issue dates and licenses by the end of January granted one day of racing to Suffolk Downs in a legal move to keep the door open for later extension to the 90 days allowed by law if the financial situation can be straightened out.

Dr. Paul F. Walsh, the commission chairman, said after Wednesday's meeting it looked as though there was an excellent chance that Suffolk would conduct its usual amount of racing this year, but said he could not elaborate.

Wesleyan, Brown Continue To Lead Shooting Accuracy

. . . NIAC STATISTICS REMAIN STABLE

After 11 weeks of major shuffling, some stability returned to the statistics this week in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference basketball race.

In the team departments the only change in the entire week was a fourth and fifth place shift in the field goal percentage list involving Midland and Concordia.

Every other team lead was unchanged. Hastings is scoring more and giving up fewer than any loop opponents. Wesleyan is the field goal percentage leader and Doane is best at shooting free throws and grabbing rebounds.

However, Doane's statistics for the past week were not made available.

Hastings and Doane lead the league with a single loss each.

Individually speaking, all the leaders came through except teammates Ken Bowling and Jim White who traded places atop the free throw percentage ladder. Bowling now is on top by a slim .848 to .843 margin.

In the scoring column, three players are over the 20 point norm level. Tom Raabe of Concordia is at 22.4, John Brown of Wesleyan at 21.8 and White is hitting 20.7 per contest.

Wesleyan's Brown is the best shooter from the floor with a .545 mark on 128 of 235 attempts. Bernard Brown of Doane has a comfortable lead in the rebounds department with 277 for a 16.3 average.

—SENIOR AT NWU—

Brown Now Fourth In Career Scoring

John Brown became the fourth highest scorer in Nebraska Wesleyan history in the Plainsmen's loss at Aurora.

He now has 1372 career points and if the present trend continues he will probably close out his collegiate play in that number four spot.

Third man on the ladder is 173 points away and that is Dick Nelson's 1545. With seven games left on the schedule it would appear that Brown will conclude play somewhat short of Nelson.

Brown is the leading field goal shooter for Wesleyan and also the entire NIAC league. He has hit 128 of 235 attempts for a .545 norm.

Sophomore Mike Renken is the club's top rebounder with 157 for a 10.5 average. Rick Boals hit seven straight free throws at Aurora to give him that percentage lead among the regulars at .650 on 39-60.

UNO Wrestlers Face Two Tests

Omaha (UPI) —The top-ranked and undefeated University of Nebraska at Omaha wrestling team will face two major dual meets against Northern Colorado tonight and Western State Saturday.

Northern Colorado is ranked No. 2 among NCAA college division teams by Amateur Wrestling News. Western is ranked No. 6.

Omaha ran its season to 11-0-1 last week with wins over South Dakota and Ft. Hays State.

However, coach Don Benning said two regulars have been lost to scholastic ineligibility. They are Dennis Cozad (126) and Jordan Smith (158).

NWU Tracksters Splitting

. . . ONE GROUP TO HOUSTON, ANOTHER TO OMAHA

Track performers from Nebraska Wesleyan University will mark somewhat of a historic milestone this week end.

The Plainsmen thinclads of coach Woody Greeno will be competing in two meets some 900 miles apart.

The most significant, of course, is the trip to Houston by Greeno and six of his finest performers. The sextet will compete in the third annual Astrodome-Fedreation National Indoor Track and Field Championships.

The Houston affair is slated for Friday and Saturday. Meanwhile, the remainder of the NWU team will be in an indoor triangular Friday night at the University of Nebraska at Omaha along with the hosts and South Dakota University.

Newcomer has already got his name on the all-time records list at NWU despite having competed in only one track meet. The York ace toured the mile in 4:19.9 during a recent Omaha indoor track and field federation meet.

This fete was accomplished on a short track and the first time Newcomer had ever seen a board track much less run on one. The Astrodome time could be lower. The wonderous building features a 354-yard AstroTurf track.

Coach Greeno figures Newcomer might place in the college division mile, but at the moment he is battling a flu bug. And for this reason the mile and two-mile relay quartets do not include the brilliant freshman.

"We could change our minds about Lee any time," noted Greeno. "However, as of this moment our quartets will be made up with Rutledge, Krejci, Struebing and Graham. We certainly hope that combination can improve on an 8:03 clocking in that Omaha meet and possibly get into the finals and maybe place in one of the two events."

"We will also put together a distance medley unit, but will decide on the members later. It depends in part on whether some individuals qualify in their specialties. Rutledge will go in the 440 and 880 runs of the college division and Graham in the 880. How they fare will dictate our medley lineups," concluded the veteran NWU mentor.

Graham already holds the school 880 record with a 1:53.8 clocking as a freshman. He recently clocked at 1:22 time for a 660-yard run which compares with a 1:52 or 1:53 half.

Graham, Struebing and Rutledge are all members of the mile relay record team of last year. Along with departed senior Jim Watt they fashioned a 3:20.2 mark. Graham and Struebing also joined graduates Watt and Jack McVay for a school mark of 7:43.9 in the two-mile.

"We will be happy to perform well and elated if we can garner any places in Houston," said Greeno. "This meet will attract some 2,500 of the finest track and field men in the world. However, my six men have really worked hard this year and we feel they deserve an opportunity to run in a national preestige meet of this caliber."

Sled Races Set At Holmes Park

The Lincoln Recreation Dept. plans to have sled races at 1 p.m. Saturday at Holmes Park to determine the "Fastest Sled in the West."

Age groups will be by grade, with a special race for discs and minitoboggans. There will also be a team toboggan race and a parent, child race.

A. Johnson, McNaught To Coach Clinic Again

Omaha — For the third consecutive year, Lincoln basketball coaches Alden Johnson and Wally McNaught have been named by the Nebraska Coaches Association to provide the leadership for the Association's summer coaching clinic and all-star basketball game, association president Hank Amend of Omaha Burke High School announced.

Amend said Johnson will coordinate work on the clinic, scheduled for Aug. 18-20, and McNaught will chair the Association's basketball committee which serves as the administrators for the Aug. 20 all-star game. Both events will be at Pershing Auditorium in Lincoln.

Plainsmen Trying To Avoid Conference Cellar Tonight

By STEVE GILLISPIE
Star Sports Writer

Fremont — Nebraska Wesleyan heads into the last half of the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference's season tonight against Midland College here.

The Plainsmen are 2-3 in conference games with five remaining while the Warriors are 2-5 with only three conference games left. The winner tonight can escape the conference cellar.

Both teams also are struggling to win as many as they lose with NWU currently 7-8 on the season and Midland 7-10.

In their first meeting this season, the Plainsmen prevailed, 96-85, in overtime at the Ira J. Taylor Gym on Jan. 25. The game had ended 79-all but Wesleyan dominated the overtime period to take the win.

The Warriors will have to rely on good outside shooting in order to win with NWU hoping to get its fast break working.

Gail Searcey, Vern Banks and Mike Wilcox will try and hit from the outside against the Plainsmen to help open the inside game of center Ivan Young. Searcey had 21 points against NWU in the first meeting, Banks 16 and Wilcox 15 while Young had 20.

Young is deadly when he can get inside as he did against the Plainsmen in the first game and hit eight of nine field goal attempts.

NWU's rebounding superiority over its opponents could get the Plainsmen's fast break going. In only three games this season has Wesleyan been out rebounded.

With Mike Renken, John Brown and Lyle Hiatt grabbing rebounds, they hope to feed Reidell Lintz and Rick Boals to open up the running game for NWU.

Against Midland in their first encounter the Plainsmen had 44 rebounds to 37 for the Warriors and their fast break worked almost to perfection in the overtime period. But tonight NWU will be playing away from home and will need a better effort than shown in Lincoln against Midland in order to win.

Chairman Of Rozman Fact-Finding Unit Sees 'Breakdown In System'

The chairman of the faculty fact-finding committee in the Stephen Rozman case said Wednesday he believes "there's been a breakdown in the system."

Speaking to University of Nebraska student senators, Prof. Henry Holtzclaw said his committee "is anxious" to develop "more orderly and fair" procedures to deal with future such cases.

A statement the committee is drafting will contain "some constructive criticism" aimed at resolving the problems, he said.

Holtzclaw chaired a special five-member committee of senior faculty members that conducted a comprehensive study of the Rozman case, concluding that Rozman "was not guilty of inappropriate actions" last May during antiwar activities on the Lincoln campus.

The Board of Regents, however, voted last Saturday not to rehire Rozman for next year, stressing the board's contention that Rozman's conduct was not acceptable.

That decision has since set off around of discussions and protests, including a peaceful sit-in Wednesday in the office of Chancellor D. B. Varner.

That demonstration resulted in three arrests and disciplinary actions against five other students.

Speaking to the student senate, Holtzclaw said the university community is "interested in having a university with a free exchange of ideas" in accord "with the time-honored principles" of academic freedom and freedom of expression.

But he said he believes "procedures have not worked very well" in the Rozman case, and he suggested the procedures need to be either revised or new ones developed.

"There's been a breakdown in the system . . . in this case," he said.

He said his committee encourages "a constructive and meaningful appraoch."

A committee statement on the regents' action will be ready for consideration by the faculty at a special meeting Monday, he said.

Another member of the committee, Prof. Dermot Coyne, said he is "disappointed with the opinion of the regents," although he "accepts their right" to it.

He said he would oppose a move to censure the board and the administration as "not constructive."

But "because of the crisis," he said, the university must develop policies on the "limits" within which both faculty members and administrative may act, as well as policies on what constitutes disruptive protests and what behavior on the part of faculty members would be considered inappropriate.

He also suggested that future such cases be heard by a committee composed of two each of regents, administrators, faculty members and students.

Such a committee's conclusion, he said, should be binding on the Board of Regents.

Student Senate Seeks Meet With Regents

The senate of the Associated Students of the University of Nebraska (ASUN) Wednesday voted to ask all members of the Board of Regents to meet with the senators for an open discussion of the Stephen Rozman case.

Student senators also voted to ask the faculty senate to "evaluate critically the procedures used by the Board of Regents in the hiring and dismissal of faculty members."

Action on the two resolutions came after senators asked questions of Rozman and two members of the faculty fact-finding committee which studied the case and concluded Rozman had not acted inappropriately last May.

Resolutions Tabled

Tabled by the students were a number of other related resolutions, including one calling for ASUN censure of the regents for their decision not to rehire Rozman.

The meeting with the regents was tentatively set for next Tuesday night.

Chancellor D. B. Varner has told students during discussions in the last two days that Regent Edward Schwartzkopf has said he would participate in such a meeting that night, and Varner said Regent Robert Prokop has said he would be willing to exchange views at some future date.

Meeting Asked

The students said they are asking all the members of the board to meet for a open question-and-answer session similar to one held Monday night.

During that meeting, students questioned Varner and NU Lincoln President Joseph Soshnik, expressing concerns arising from the Rozman matter.

The senate, in the resolution to the faculty governing body, also urged establishment of "all procedures necessary to the safeguarding of human rights."

Senators Guests At Milford Event

Milford (UPI) — The Milford Chamber of Commerce had a get-acquainted dinner for Nebraska's state senators with guests including Gov. J. J. Exon.

The dinner was held at the Nebraska Vocation-Technical School.

Other guests included Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh, Education Commissioner Cecil Stanley, director of the State Department of Administrative Services, Gus Lieske, assistant state commissioner for vocational-technical education, Glenn Strain, and clerk of the legislature, Vincent D. Brown.

Creighton Students Protest

Omaha (AP) — Thirty-eight Creighton University students Wednesday marched about 20 blocks with peace flags to present a letter of protest to Sen. Roman Hruska R-Neb.

Senior political science major Craig Cornish of Topeka Kan., took the letter up to the eighth floor of the federal building where Sen. Hruska has his Omaha office while the rest of the students stood outside singing "God Bless America."

Sen. Hruska was not there, but Cornish gave the letter to one of Hruska's assistants. The letter charged in part that President Nixon has "violated at least the spirit of the Cooper-Church Amendment, and has reneged on his promise to bring about an end to the war."

LES Proposing $2,442,000 For Capital Improvements

For TOM EKVALL
Star Staff Writer

The Lincoln Electric System Administrative Board, presented with a capital improvements program Wednesday for the 1971-72 fiscal year totalling $2,442,000 decided to take action on the program at its meeting next month.

Board members also approved retaining former City Atty. Norman Krivosha as a consultant and legal counsel to the board on a retainer of $1,000 a month and Dale Renner a special assistant to the board for $1,250 a month.

The capital improvements program is a statement of needs and may or may not be what the capital improvements budget will be at the time the City Council goes over budgets.

$100,000 Contingent Item

The program also calls for another $100,000 for a central service building as a contingent item.

The six-year program calls for expenditures of a firm $19,401,000 and $4,400,000 in contingent items.

The proposed program for the fiscal year starting Sept. 1 includes $225,000 for transmission facilities, $1,365,000 for distribution facilities, $330,000 for street lighting of which $237,000 is for lighting arterials, $412,000 for substations, $40,000 for rural service, $50,000 for steam heating and $20,000 for land for power plants.

In hiring Krivosha, board members felt he was the best possible person to provide the board with legal advice and to participate in negotiations. He will also be given other duties as needed until an administrator is hired for the Lincoln Electric System.

Legal counsel has normally been provided by the city law department in past years.

The law department has previously charged the Lincoln Electric System $10,000 for a year's time for all legal services, which includes land acquisition and claims as well as legal counsel.

Expects Fee Reduction

Renner said he expected the fee to be reduced substantially in view of the retaining of Krivosha, the amount saved to be used for paying Krivosha.

Board members expressed an interest in having the city still do the claims and land acquisition work.

Renner, who had been special assistant to the mayor prior to the formation of the administrative board, will receive a salary increase of $250 a month and will stay on as special assistant until the new administrator is hired.

The board also agreed with a suggestion of board member Nicolas Bashara to investigate alternative sites for the new peaking unit originally planned to be built near the present K St. plant.

Bashara cited a possible noise problem and said cost savings might also be realized.

APPOINTED

President Nixon has appointed Herbert F. DeSimone assistant secretary of transportation for environment and urban affairs. He is former attorney general of Rhode Island and an unsuccessful Republican candidate for governor in 1970.

Educator Says System Is 'Grossly Inadequate'

By LINDA SULLIVAN
Star Staff Writer

Our society is operating a "grossly inadequate educational system" that graduates students who really don't know anything about the world they live in, an Illinois educator told a gathering of University of Nebraska students Wednesday.

Dr. Charles G. Hurst Jr., president of Malcolm X College in Chicago, said that students are unprepared for life in our society because "education fails to recognize the impact of racism," which Hurst believes is the number one problem in America.

"I negotiated myself all the way to my Ph.D. never knowing anything about myself because we never talked about racism in the schools where I went," Hurst said.

Churches Have Failed

The President's Commission on Violence said America was in need of moral leadership and the universities must assume that role since churches have failed, he said.

"Higher education must put social problems on the agenda," he said.

Dr. Hurst spoke of the "university of the streets" where subject matter "is real life, and thinking and doing are inseparable."

At a press conference Monday afternoon, Dr. Hurst said American education is a regimented one irrelevant to blacks.

"An education that prepares an American for life in the Soviet Union is irrelevant and so is one geared to white middle class America when a man must live in the misery of the urban ghetto," he said.

He suggested the university bring about "re-humanization of society by first re-humanizing itself."

'Example Of Justice'

Malcolm X College is an institution "struggling to establish an identity" based on the principle that a university "must be an outstanding example of justice," he said.

When he became president of the college two years ago, it was known as Crane Community College and had an administration 95% white, faculty 80% white and a student body all black, he said.

Dr. Hurst said that students and the community of Chicago's West Side were directly involved in formulating the school's philosophy, just as they were involved in selecting the new name and evaluating perspective teachers.

The faculty of the two-year college is now almost 60% black, he said, and the black viewpoint "permeates all classes."

Hurst said that the school had to retain the grading system in order to maintain accreditation, but that D's and F's were never given and the school did not grant special recognition to A students.

The grading system creates competition, a "destructive force," he said. "What we're seeking is unity and humanity."

Van Pelt Hoping To Combat Rising Car Insurance Rates

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

State Insurance Director Samuel Van Pelt said Wednesday that his department will make specific recommendations dealing with rising automobile insurance rates to the 1972 Legislature.

Van Pelt said an advisory committee of lawyers and insurance industry representatives is being formed to assist the Department of Insurance in this effort.

The so-called "no-fault" auto insurance plan, enacted by Massachusetts and being considered by other states, will be studied, Van Pelt indicated.

Not Convinced

However, he said he is not convinced the absolute "no-fault" system, coupled with compulsory insurance, is the answer.

"The ideal solution would be to retain the desirable aspects of the present tort-liability system, but at the same time incorporate into it several of the cost-saving ideas of the 'no-fault' system," Van Pelt said.

In a prepared statement, Van Pelt noted the 13% rate increase granted in January to the Insurance Rating Board of New York City is less than the 17% requested by the organization for approximately 25 companies doing business in the state.

He said the increase will affect approximately 17% of the policy holders in the state, but anticipated other companies will follow with increase requests.

Filed In October

Van Pelt noted that rate increase application was filed last October with the department.

"I can see no reasons, other than political, why this application was not acted upon prior to the November election, and long before the change of administrations on Jan. 7," he said.

However, Van Pelt said the Exon administration "is more concerned with solving future problems, than regretting the unsolved problems of the past."

'Every Prospect Of Increasing'

He noted auto insurance rates have increased nearly 35% in the last three years, over 80% during the past 10 years, and have "every prospect of increasing 10 to 15% each year in the immediate future, unless some action is taken."

Van Pelt said the department, with the advisory committee, will attempt to find solutions to either "stop or slow down these continued increases."

Van Pelt said insurance companies, forced to operate their underwriting business at a loss the past few years, have a vital interest in the problem as well as insurance agents who have borne the brunt of public criticism for rising rates.

Anticipating excellent cooperation from the insurance industry and the Nebraska State Bar Association, Van Pelt noted that the legal profession has "always responded to improve judicial processes when changing times have over-burdened the existing system."

Economist Says Cure For Inflation Is Needed

By LADD HERSHNER
Star Staff Writer

A noted economist said in Lincoln Wednesday that the United States needs to focus major attention on curing inflation during the coming year.

Dr. Paul S. Nadler told 740 Nebraska banking officials, businessmen and state and local government representatives attending a luncheon sponsored by the Wonderful World of Banking in Nebraska, "with unemployment now 6% of the working force and rising, the curing of inflation should receive the major attention in the months ahead."

Nadler, a professor of business administration at Rutgers University, author, columnist and consultant to four commercial banks, said that "the unwillingness of consumers and business to spend should keep the rate of growth in real output of goods and services at about 2 or 2½% until mid 1971."

Unemployment May Drop

After this, he said, the new emphasis of government stimulation, along with the rise in size of the labor force and growing productivity should bring the real growth rate up to 4 or 4½%, and the unemployment rate should start dropping from a high that could well be over 6% before Winter is over.

Dr. Nadler further stated that "the economy should rekindle inflationary pressures late in 1971" and will happen "unless the (Nixon) Administration is willing to take a much stronger role in enforcing an income policy of inflation alerts and pressing for the freest of markets so that domestic and foreign competition can prevent price advances."

He said that "if one point is certain after the election of 1970" it is that if the United States must choose between full employment and a stable dollar, "at the present time we will opt for the full employment."

He noted that unless "we see very vigorous governmental intervention in the economy,' the price increases and fears of inflation will continue to be a part of the United States' fabric in the years ahead.

One Economic Thought

According to Dr. Nadler, "the prevention of unemployment and excess capacity should remain the number one economic thought in the minds of the American people and their government until Europe develops a common currency, thus forcing us to worry more about price levels."

The sponsoring organization for the luncheon, the Wonderful World of Banking in Nebraska, is comprised of seven commercial banks covering a wide geographical area in the state.

All seven banks maintain their separate management and officers, although by grouping together they are able to provide a much wider range of services to each local community, a spokesman said.

The combined assets of the seven banks, totals nearly $280 million according to spokesmen for the organization.

Member banks include, the National Bank of Commerce in Lincoln, North Platte State Bank in North Platte, First State Bank in Fremont, First National Bank and Trust Co. in Fremont, Lincoln Bank South in Lincoln, First National Bank in Kearney and the Overland National Bank in Grand Island.

Golfing Group Says Astronaut Was Not Polite

London (AP) — Moon golfer Alan B. Shepard Jr. got a gentle rap Wednesday from the Royal and Ancient, the ruling body of golf in Britain.

The R and A sent him congratulations for his golf exercise on the moon and also on Apollo 14's success.

Then the R and A suggested: "Please refer to rules of golf on etiquette.

"Before leaving a bunker, a player should carefully fill up holes made by him therein."

Both Sides Rest In Halseth Trial

Sioux City, Iowa (AP) — Both defense and prosecution have rested their cases in the trial of 19-year-old Richard Halseth, accused of kidnaping an Iowa housewife and forcing her to drive to Sioux Falls, S.D.

The prosecution in Halseth's Federal Court trial say Richard and his older brother, Harold, 30, kidnaped three persons on Sept. 27 and 28. One was Sgt. Richard Hartman, Blair police officer who was forced at gunpoint to drive the brothers toward Iowa.

The two also are accused of kidnaping Lyle Livingwood, Modale, Iowa, farmer and forcing him to drive to Hornick and the farm of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Luchsinger. Luchsinger then was allegedly locked in a closet and Mrs. Luchsinger forced to drive the brothers to Sioux Falls.

Richard was arrested in Sioux Falls Sept. 29. The older Halseth was later arrested in Canada where he is serving a 15-year prison sentence.

Cooperation Between Towns, Counties Urged

Ord (UPI) —More than 50 persons from a seven county area met here for the second session of a community development session here.

Spokesmen at the meeting called for cooperation between counties and towns in the region so that a comprehensive plan could be formulated to make region 26 a functional economic area.

Officials said the larger town can no longer afford to isolate itself from the village or hamlet.

Region 26 consists of Blaine, Garfield, Wheeler, Custer, Valley, Sherman, and Greeley Counties.

Funding Available To Fight Drinking Driver Problem

Lincoln has been assured of continuing federal funds of up to $400,000 to $600,000 for the next three years to undertake countermeasure programs to handle the problem of the drinking driver, the Lincoln Action Commission on Alcohol Safety was told Wednesday.

Don Nugent, project director of the alcohol safety action project, said the funds will become available once the federal government has accepted a formal application of what the city plans to do to keep drinking drivers off the road and help them do something about their problem.

Nugent said Lincoln had been one of the cities rated high by the federal government as having submitted one of the best programs in its preliminary application.

He said that many of the things to be done under the program are already being done.

Ralph Fox, chairman of the commission, which is an agency of city government, said the group needs to spell out now the already proposed countermeasures in detail.

Fox said that "We do not have a lot of preliminary planning to do and can implement many (of the programs) immediately."

Nugent, hired by the mayor to put the application together through a $10,000 federal grant, said emphasis will be on early identification of the drinking driver.

"We will not need as many treatment programs if we can solve the problems early," he said.

Record Set At Security Mutual Life

President D. I. Parker reported to policyowners at the 76th annual meeting of Security Mutual Life Insurance Co. that new records of sales were established for 33 general agencies in 16 states during 1970.

Ordinary and group life insurance sales in excess of $108 million represented an increase of $33,424,000 or 44½% over sales in 1969, the highest in company history, Parker said.

Insurance-in-force at the end of the year exceeded $808 million. Assets of the company increased over $3 million, reaching a new high in excess of $72½ million.

Total income of the company for 1970 was a new high of $15,657,000, an increase of $1,614,000 over 1969.

Leland Holdt, who has served as vice president and agency director for the past five years, was elected to the board of directors and made executive vice president of the company.

Re-elected to the board were Merle Hale, John Lawlor, and Carl Olson. Holdover board members are R. E. Campbell, Robert Dobson, Avery Forke, William Mitten, T. A. Sick and Parker.

Senior officers renamed to their positions include Thomas Yaussi, vice president; Marvin Haase, vice president and treasurer; Alfred Sward, vice president and comptroller; Donald Kidney, second vice president and director of personnel; Donald Hermanson, agency vice president and Donald Huffman, secretary.

Kissel Is Elected Vice-Chairman Of Water Board

The Water Advisory Board Wednesday elected Ed Kissel as vice-chairman of the group.

Already serving as president is Tom Gorham.

The board decided at the request of Kissel to take up for action next month a resolution recommending that a comprehensive water system study be made by a consulting firm.

The study would be to update a previous study and would include water sources and distribution.

Kissel said he felt the council should allocate funds out of the present budget to get the study underway.

In other business, Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker reviewed with board members past history as to why certain areas of the city are not already served with sewer line facilities, citing problems with requests for federal aid.

Gorham said he felt that the city should be "ahead of the development of the city" in providing service rather than being 10-20 years behind times.

Americans Enter Laos To Recover Downed Copters

Saigon (AP) — The U.S. Command said Thursday that American teams are flown into Laos to recover downed helicopters. It added they were protected by South Vietnamese troops because no U.S. ground forces can enter Laos.

The command was commenting on published reports that up to 100 American soldiers had gone into Laos and quoting troops at Khe Sanh. Khe Sanh is the forward combat base for the South Vietnamese thrust across the border.

"If the troops thought they were in Laos they were mistaken," said a spokesman. "They are operating only on the Vietnam side of the border."

Male Italian Taller

Rome (UPI) — Today's male Italian stands nearly 1½ inches taller than his 19th-century forebear army statistics showed. A comparison of draft records showed the average height of Italian men born in 1862 was 5 feet, 4¾ inches, while draftees born in 1949 averaged 5 feet, 6¼ inches.

Morrison Seeks Delay In Rice, Poindexter Trial

Omaha (AP) — Public Defender Frank B. Morrison has asked for a delay in the trial of Edward Poindexter and David Rice, charged with first degree murder and conspiracy to commit murder in the Aug. 17 bomb slaying of Larry Minard.

Morrison and his deputy, Thomas M. Kenney, are defending Poindexter. Rice is represented by David Herzog.

Morrison said he and Kenney will not have sufficiect time to prepare their defense if the trial begins on schedule Tuesday.

County Attorney Donald L. Knowles said he will oppose the request because "Poindexter has the right to a speedy trial" under the U.S. constitution.

Morrison said Duane Peak, the prosecution's prime witness, gave statements in interviews last week which were "contradictory to previous statements" by Peak.

Bill Transferring School District Cost Is Held

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

A bill proposing to finance 80% of the operating costs of Nebraska's school districts from state sales and income tax revenues was held Monday in the Legislature's Education Committee.

"It's not going to cost the state one penny," Sen. Orval A. Keyes of Papillion testified in support of his LB264 during public hearing.

"It merely transfers the cost from real estate to the sales-income tax," he said. "If we don't take the load off local property, many schools will be forced to close, putting the kids on the streets."

Fiscal impact of Keyes' proposal was estimated at $169.7 million annually from state revenues as compared with the present state aid level of $35 million per year.

John Lynch, executive secretary of the Nebraska State Education Association, testified the measure was unworkable.

"Unless it is fully funded," he said, "the plan will only aggrevate the disparities between districts."

"State aid cannot be distributed on average costs," he said. "What is an average district? Schools with above average costs would get less while those below average costs would get more."

In other testimony, one taxpayer-citizen said property is overburdened by school taxes but another opposed "loading everything onto income taxes in competition with the federal government."

Remains in Committee

The Keyes measure automatically remained in committee for lack of five affirmative votes to either kill the bill or formally hold it for further consideration.

The committee held for two weeks on a 6-0 vote a measure providing that a student who has matriculated in a state educational institution while his parents were domiciled in the state may continue a resident student during his course of study even though the parents later move from the state.

In holding LB408, sponsored by Sen. Richard F. Proud of Omaha, the committee indicated it will consider another amendment modifying the present four month's residency requirement to establish eligibility for resident student tuition in the state colleges and universities.

Proposed to the committee for its consideration was "instant residency for tuition purposes" when a family purchases and occupies a home in the state.

It's unfair to families moving into Nebraska and buying homes to find their college-age children are not eligible for resident tuition until after a four-month waiting period, the committee was told in testimony.

One member of the committee was authorized to secure a drafted amendment incorporating these provisions for the full committee's consideration.

Action Deferred On Bill To Control Big Salaries

By The Associated Press

Action was deferred Wednesday by the Legislature's Labor Committee on a bill requiring legislative approval for state employes' annual salaries of more than $25,000.

The bill, LB255, as originally introduced by Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter, placed the level requiring approval at $18,000.

The committee adopted a Carpenter amendment raising the figure to $25,000 and adding provisions that persons receiving a salary in excess of $25,000 be prohibited from accepting any other employment.

"This applies to the university," Carpenter told the committee. "When you pay a professor $25,000 he ought to work at it. This would prohibit summer employment of some professors."

Charles Pallesen, an attorney representing the University of Nebraska Board of Regents, said the measure would affect some professors receiving money from private foundations and grants.

"It would also affect Bob Devaney and his outside activities," Pallesen told the committee.

Devaney is NU's head football coach and athletic director.

The committee deadlocked 3-3 on an amendment offered by Richard Wilson, representing the public utility industry in Nebraska, to exclude public power employes from the measure.

"They are different," Wilson said. "They don't use tax funds. There's is a business function. They are in competition with other utility companies throughout the United States for employes."

Three motions — to kill the bill, advance the bill with Carpenter's amendment and amend the bill to exclude employes of the University of Nebraska — all died for lack of a second.

The committee advanced another Carpenter measure, LB360, to lower the retirement age for state employes from 68 to 65.

However, the committee adopted a Carpenter amendment which provides that an employe may continue working past 65 with annual approval of his employer.

In other action, the committee postponed disposition of Omaha Sen. Richard Proud's LB189, a labor-management bill which has been killed in the past three legislative sessions.

The measure makes it a criminal offense, punishable by a $100 to $500 fine, for an employer to "willfully or with intent to defraud" fail to make agreed payments to a health, welfare, pension or similar fund set up for the employe's benefit.

Another Proud bill, LB324, to lower the legal age for playing bingo from 20 to 19, was advanced after the committee went one step further and amended the bill lowering the age to 18.

North Platte Sen. Ellen Craft's LB189, to exempt owners of four food vending machines or less from paying a $50 license fee, was held for later disposition.

No Action Taken On Cycle Helmets

The Legislature's Public Works Committee Wednesday heard but took no action on a bill to provide a penalty section for the state statutes requiring motorcycle riders to wear protective helmets.

The bill is LB369 sponsored by Lincoln Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme.

According to her bill, persons convicted of not wearing helmets would be fined.

The bill was supported Wednesday as a protective measure to motorcyclists and it was pointed out that one of the major causes of fatalities among cycle riders is head injuries.

The committee also heard but took no action on a bill to limit cabin trailers to a top speed of 50 miles per hour on state highways.

The current law prohibits trailers less than 23 feet long to be towed faster than 50 miles per hour.

Governor Urges More Emphasis On Trade School

Gov. J. James Exon Monday told the State Advisory Council on Vocational Education that priorities must be shifted to vocational education to achieve "better balance" in the educational needs of Nebraskans.

Vocational education has "my wholehearted support," the governor said at the council's regular meeting. "I'm sorry not more money could have been provided in the budget for vocational education."

Within revenue limits a year from now, the governor expressed hope that his administration "can do considerable better for vocational education."

Saluting both the state and area vocational-technical schools, Exon said these facilities are a key to attracting new industry to the state.

Beermann Sets May Presidential Primary Deadline

Secretary of State Allen Beermann Wednesday set Feb. 9, 1972 as the date he plans to announce the names of the presidential candidates he wishes to place on the May presidential primary ballot next year.

Beermann said he was announcing the deadline date a year ahead of time in order to resolve the matter at the earliest possible time.

Only Sen. George McGovern, an announced Democratic presidential candidate, is assured of a position on the Nebraska ballot at this time.

Owens Is Elected To Transportation Club Presidency

D. V. (Bud) Owens was installed Wednesday as president of the Lincoln Transportation Club at its 31st annual meeting.

Owens is area sales manager for the Burlington Northern, Inc. for the Lincoln area.

Other new officers are S. O. (Sy) Moberly, vice president, and John Cunninghan, secretary-treasurer. 1971 directors include Sherman Blocker, Bob Carter, Art Freeman, Floyd Hibdon, John Hunt, Clarence Mayabb, John Meyerhoff, Adolph Morlok, John Panter, Don Rhoades and John Roseland.

Bill Asks One Cent Tax On Non-Returnable Containers

The Legislature's Revenue Committee Wednesday gave hearing to, but took no action on, the first of numerous anti-pollution bills introduced in the current session — a measure to tax non-returnable bottles and cans.

The bill is LB433, sponsored by Sens. David Stahmer of Omaha and Richard Maresh of Milligan.

It would levy a one cent tax on non-returnable liquor and soft drink containers, with the money going to the highway trust fund to be used for roadside cleanup.

Opposition to LB433 was heavy, coming mainly from representatives of the liquor and soft drink industries, all of whom contended the bill was discriminatory against the two industries.

Sen. J. James Waldron of Callaway, a member of the committee, has introduced another bill, LB888, which would ban entirely the sale of products in non-returnable containers.

In another action, the committee amended and sent to the floor LB309, a bill to revise the law which says certain county officials, including assessors, must be certified as competent by the State Revenue Department.

The bill would provide that required week-long courses of instruction could be given at sites other than Lincoln.

Market Rebounds After Early Loss

New York (AP) — The stock market resisted a surge of profit taking and snapped back from a sharp early loss Wednesday.

Volume on the New York Stock Exchange fell off from the record level of the two previous sessions but continued heavy.

The wide early margin of declines over advances among issues traded on the Big Board narrowed substantially, but at the close losses still predominantly among the rubber issues, aircrafts, electronics, chemicals, rails and tobaccos. Mail order-retails, oils and airlines climbed into the plus column.

The slump that began soon after the opening was attributed by one Wall Street analyst to "profit taking, which is long overdue after the market's long and steep advance."

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials wound up with a gain of 1.30 at 881.09 after having tumbled 7.12 in the first hour of trading.

The Associated Press 60-stock average dropped .8 to 305.7, with industrials up .8, rails off 1.6, and utilities off .6. The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks slipped 0.06 to 53.59. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was off .12 to 97.39.

Among 1,686 issues traded on the New York Exchange, 856 fell and 550 rose. In early trading, losers topped gainers by a margin of 4 to 1. There were 87 new 1970-71 highs and 2 new lows.

Big Board volume of 19.04 million shares was well under the record of 28.25 million shares set Tuesday. This was the first session since Jan. 28 that volume had fallen below 20 million shares.

Big-block trades on the New York Exchange dwindled to 113 from the record 164 on Tuesday.

Pfizer, off 7/8 to 37 on total volume of 187,200 shares, led the Big Board's most-active list.

The American Stock Exchange price-change index dipped .01 to 25.05, and declines exceeded advances by 529 to 393 among 1,152 issues traded. Volume slumped to 5.8 million shares from 8.33 million on Tuesday.

Heavy Selling Hits New Crop Soybean Futures

Chicago (AP) — New crop soybeans futures came under heavy selling pressure on the Chicago Board of Trade Wednesday and eased more than 2 cents a bushel.

Wheat prices closed nearly 1½ cents lower and corn ½ cent lower. Oats were mixed at the close.

The weakness in grain futures was discernible on the opening, but there was some visible strength in soybeans. Selling took over in the bean pit and grew progressively stronger as the session wore on.

At the close, soybeans were 2⅛ cents lower to ¾ higher, March 3.04¾; wheat was 1 to 1⅜ lower, March 1.69½; corn was ⅛ to ½ lower, March 1.53; and oats were ¾ lower to ½ higher, March 77 cents.

Ervin Discovers 243,135 Names In 'Lookout File'

©The New York Times

Washington — The U.S. Passport Office acknowledged Wednesday that it keeps a secret, computerized file of 243,135 Americans whose applications for passports may be of interest to it or to government law enforcement agencies. Persons listed in the file may never be aware of it.

The existence of the "lookout file" was disclosed by Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., chairman of the Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights and a persistent critic of government surveillance and file keeping abuses.

In a speech before a symposium on "Invasion of Privacy" at Dickinson College in Carlisle, Pa., Ervin said he had discovered the Passport Office file through a reply to his subcommittee's questionnaires.

Snooping On Citizens

He called it another proof that uncontrolled and undercover government snooping on the private lives of millions of citizens is raising a serious threat to the exercise of the First Amendment rights of free speech, free thought and freedom to associate.

In an interview here Wednesday, Miss Frances Knight, Passport Office director since 1955, insisted that "a passport is a United States document addressed to foreign governments in which we are saying 'This person is an American citizen.' "

She said "a vast majority" — perhaps 90% — of the "lookout file" names are persons of "questionable citizenship" about whom it was her obligation to be curious and cautious in issuing "an official document."

A spokesman for Ervin, however, said the State Department had reported to him in writing that the largest group of names on the list was in the "known or suspected Communists or subversives" category and that the number of names under "doubtful citizenship" ranked second. The number in each category was not immediately available.

Miss Knight expressed surprise at the large number of names on the list.

'Police State'

Ervin has scheduled nine days of public hearings before his subcommittee starting Feb. 23 on what he has called the growth of "police state" surveillance and dossier keeping on perhaps 50 million Americans, most of them accused of breaking no laws.

The senator, a former judge of the North Carolina Supreme Court, said that while there might be legitimate reasons for maintaining portions of the Passport Office file, many of the justifications for it given to his subcommittee by the State Department were "beyond any reason whatsoever."

He said a department reply to a subcommittee questionnaire listed these categories:

—Individual's actions do not reflect to the credit of the U.S. abroad. (1,040 persons).

—Defectors, expatriates and repatriates whose background demands further inquiry prior to issuance of a passport.

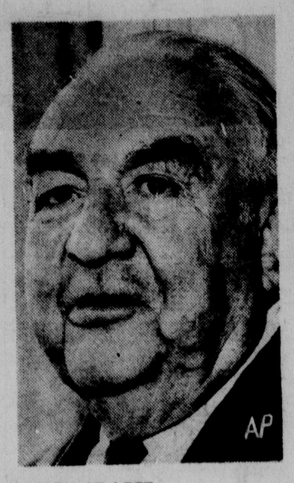

—Persons wanted by a law enforcement agency for criminal activity.

—Individual is involved in a child custody or desertion case.

—Delinquents or suspected delinquents in military service.

—Known or suspected Communists or subversives.

Ervin said other categories included simply "orange card" and "miscellaneous." "I don't know what 'orange card' means, and I don't think they know, either," he said.

Whites' Flight To Suburbs Hastens

Washington (UPI) — The flight of whites from the nation's central cities to the suburbs accelerated during the last decade, with the white population declining in all of the dozen largest municipalities except Los Angeles, the Commerce Department reported Wednesday.

Figures for the 67 largest urban areas showed there was very little suburban integration during the 1960s, despite the passage of a number of open housing laws at the federal and state levels.

Of the 12 largest cities, the only one to gain white population was Los Angeles, where whites increased by 5.3% to 2.17 million.

3 Join Washington

Another indication of the trend was that four large cities — Washington, Newark, N.J., Gary, Ind., and Atlanta, Ga. — were more than half black in 1970. When the decade began, only Washington had more blacks than whites.

The latest census shows Washington with a black population of 71.1%; Newark, 54.2%; Gary, 52.8%, and Atlanta, 51.3%.

During the decade, the white population of the central cities declined by 1.87 million and the Negro population rose by 2.82 million. Over-all, whites still outnumber Negroes in the cities, 33 million to nearly 11 million.

The largest loss of white residents was in Chicago — 505,000 persons, a decline of 18.6% from the city's total population a decade before.

Other White Losses

Other white losses were recorded in New York, 9.3% of 1960 population; Philadelphia, 12.9%; Detroit, 29.2%; San Francisco, 15.4%; Oakland, 21.1%; Washington, 39.4%; Boston 16.5%; Pittsburgh, 18%; St. Louis, 31.6%; Baltimore, 21.4%; and Cleveland, 26.5%.

In the suburbs, whites increased by 12.43 million residents during the decade, while the Negro increase was only 763,000.

The suburb racial breakdown in 67 of the nation's largest metropolitan areas was 51.73 million whites and 2.58 million Negroes. The percentage of Negroes in the suburbs declined during the decade in 25 of the 67 areas, although the total percentage rose from 4.2 to 4.5%.

Wards, Spiegel Accused Of Illegal Credit Practices

Washington (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission Wednesday accused Montgomery Ward and Spiegel, two retail giants, of illegal credit practices which could deceive charge account customers.

The FTC charges against the two Chicago-based firms included allegations that both failed to inform customers that they would be charged interest on their last month's entire balance unless it was paid in full.

The truth-in-lending law requires disclosure of this so-called "previous balance" system, which is used by many other retailers and would be outlawed under legislation introduced by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis.

Under this system, a customer who gets a bill for $50 and pays less than that amount will receive a bill the following month including interest on the entire $50 balance.

The FTC charges were in the form of proposed consent orders against Montgomery Ward & Co. Inc., and its parent firm, Marcor Inc., and against Spiegel Inc. The companies can sign the orders agreeing to stop the alleged violations without admitting guilt or contest them before an FTC hearing examiner.

Oldsters Reported

Moscow (UPI) — The Soviet news agency Tass reported that there are about 80 persons over 100 years of age who live in the villages of the Western Urals. It quoted one such resident's success for long life as being hard work and eating honey.

University Instructors Seeking Union Charter

By LIANE WETTERER
Star Staff Writer

Approximately 25 instructors at the University of Nebraska signed a petition Wednesday, requesting application for a local charter from the American Federation of Teachers (AFT).

Addressing the preliminary organizational meeting for the NU chapter, Lincoln Central Labor Union president Rex King said that two moves to organize were already underway: the University of Nebraska at Omaha had organized between 50 and 60 faculty members or about 15%, and the University of Nebraska's College of Business has drawn about 30% support for the move.

The organization would affect department chairmen "if they don't have the power to hire or fire," and teaching assistants, as well as full-time instructors.

50% Cooperation Needed

Richard Nisley, president of the Nebraska Federation of Labor, affiliated with the AFL-CIO, told the faculty members they were professionals, but the only professionals he knew of that worked for wages and therefore should be afforded some protection.

Nisley directed attention to LB176, a bill before the current legislature that would repeal LB15 passed during the 1970 session. LB15 allowed public employes to bargain collectively and Nisley said his organization was working in opposition to its repeal.

Speaking for the college of business organization, economics professor George Rejda said he had been chairman of the Retirement Insurance Committee and knew the "frustration of not being heard by the administration." He pointed to examples where it had taken from four to 10 years to negotiate settlements with the administration.

In reference to the "Rozman Case" confronting university faculty and students, Prof. David Levine said he was specifically interested in what a union would do in such a situation.

Bill Pratt of the UNO chapter said he had conferred with the Washington, D.C. office of the AFT earlier in the day and was told they were "very interested in following the case" in the event NU did decide to affiliate with the union.

A subsequent organizational meeting for the University of Nebraska chapter will be held Wednesday, Feb. 17, on the NU campus.
